CONGRESSMEN IN FIST FIGHT

BOUT SEEN BY DAUGHTER OF WILSON

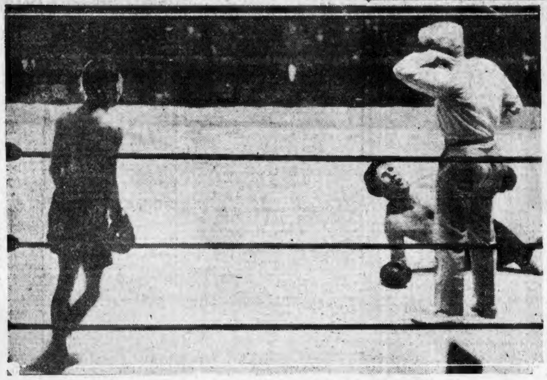
MISS MARGARET WILSON



THE "KNOCKOUT" MISS WILSON WITNESSED

Tremaine, Cleveland bantam, and Curtin, Jersey City scrapper, in their scheduled twelve-round bout in New York. Curtin has just been knocked down by Tremaine. Curtin claimed a foul, but the referee refused to allow it and gave Tremaine a technical "knockout." (Photo by International News Reel.)

Among those able to give an eye-witness account today of the Tremaine-Curtin bantamweight prize fight at New York is Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of ex-President Wilson.

An ardent boxing fan, as she herself says, she was one of the ringside spectators at this bout, which Carl Tremaine, the Cleveland bantam, won over Johnny Curtin, the Irish scrapper from Jersey City, by a technical knockout.

The versatility of this one of the Wilson daughters has been known. She has been acclaimed as an artist, singer, linguist and athlete. She excels in golf, tennis and swimming.

But her enthusiasm over prize fights comes as a new angle to many who have followed her active career.

She saw plenty of action in the six rounds of the Tremaine-Curtin fight. The Jersey City lad tore into the Cleveland bantam for the first few rounds, taking all Tremaine had to offer.

During the war Miss Wilson went across and sang as a Y. M. C. A. worker to thousands of soldiers.

She has sung at Maine Musical Festival and other notable musical events.

Six years ago she appealed to soldiers in army camps in this country to vote for woman suffrage.

BIG CROWD OUT FOR GOLD SKATES RACES

A great crowd of sport fans watched New England's greatest amateur skaters assault records at the Arena this afternoon. The finals in the great Boston American Gold Skate Races produced endless thrills, from the opening heat, the semi-final for boys under fourteens years of age, until the last race, in which a dozen of the best skaters in the East attempted to take the crown from champion Walter Thorne in a half mile dash.

In all, sixteen events were run off very smoothly, and each winner received the tribute of a great cheer

REPORT MAIL PLANE PLUNGED IN LAKE

Gary, Ind., Feb. 17.—A mail airplane, on its way from Bryan, O., to Chicago, was reported to have fallen into Lake Michigan near here this afternoon during the height of the wind and snow storm. It was reported the aviator, blinded by the snow, hit a tree along the shore and then plunged into the lake.

GEN. BOFIN ESACPES FREE STATE CORDON

Belfast, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—General Bofin, commander of the Republican Irregulars in the Arigan Hills, was reported today to have escaped again through the Fre' State lines. He recently passed through the lines in disguise married his sweetheart in a nearby village and then returned to his headquarters in a hillside cave.

JAIL DOCTOR FOR KILLING DANCER

HARDING CONSIDERS NAMING BARTLETT

Washington, Feb. 17.—Former Governor Bartlett of New Hampshire, first assistant, is being considered for Postmaster-General in case President Harding decides not to appoint Senator New of Indiana.

It was indicated today the successor might not be announced when Postmaster-General Work goes to the Interior Department on March 4 to succeed Secretary Fall, who is retiring.

RADICAL SPY IS ARRESTED

Chicago, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—Albert Bailin, alias Balanow, confessed labor and radical spy, was arrested today charged with criminal libel as a result of his sworn testimony in a deposition being taken by Frank P. Walsh, for use in the defence of twenty-two Communists at St. Joseph, Mich., February 26.

RHODE ISLAND GAMING HOUSES CLOSED UP

Providence, Feb. 17.—Fulfilling campaign promises, Governor William S. Flynn today closed all the major gambling houses in Rhode Island.

The action followed a conference between the Governor and Attorney-General Herbert L. Carpenter. The edict caused consternation among professional gamblers who have been reaping a harvest for years in fixed resorts.

Rhode Island has long enjoyed the reputation of being the "Monte Carlo of New England." It has been a mecca for all sorts of games of chance and now the Democratic Governor has started a clean-up.

Notorious resorts in Newport,

CANADIAN COAL IS SEIZED

Fuel Administrator Takes 3 Carloads on Siding in New York

Balston Spa, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Deputy Fuel Administrator Thomas Kerley today seized three carloads of anthracite on a siding in this village. The coal, comprising about 150 tons, was billed to Canadian points. It will be distributed throughout the village.

Over the protest of Federal Fuel Distributor Wadleigh at Washington, the Interstate Commerce Commission today refused to issue general priority orders to expedite the movement of coal to Northeastern New York and New England.

Two hundred and sixty-eight cars, containing more than 10,000 tons of coal, are on their way to Saratoga and the Adirondacks district, it was announced this afternoon by the New York State fuel administration after advices were received from Carbondale, Pa., where the cars were loaded.

Today the Interstate Commerce Commission sent inspectors to northern New York and New England railway gateways to facilitate coal movements.

The commission telegraphed presidents of five railroads supplying the coal-famine districts to "exert every power to transport coal needed."

F. R. Wadleigh, Federal Fuel Distributor, received a telegram from General George W. Goethals, New York State Fuel Administrator, stating that what New York and New England territories now need is "coal, not conferences."

A Washington dispatch quoted Wadleigh as saying, when he received this wire, that he was powerless to give coal. He turned the telegram over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers Republican, of Lowell, informed the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington that American hard coal was being sold in Canada in quantities, while coalless American communities were paying exorbitant prices for small lots.

Rogers scored the hearings which the commission has so far held, calling them "Love feasts between

GIRL DEAD IN SCHOOL FIRE

Heiress, Ill, Carried to Street From Blazing Pittsfield Building

Pittsfield, Feb. 17.—Agnes Coote, a maid, was burned to death, two girls were taken to Pittsfield Hospital and forty others were forced to flee for their lives today when fire destroyed the Myra Hall School, one-half mile out on Appleton avenue.

Five fire trucks, responding to the alarm, got stuck in the snow and tied up street car traffic for more than two hours. The building was once the home of Colonel Walter E Cutting.

BATTLE ON FLOOR OF HOUSE

Farm Credits Debaters Separated After Riotous Clash

Washington, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—A physical clash on the floor of the House between Representatives Wingo of Arkansas and Jones of Texas, both Democrats, in which blows were struck, threw the chamber into wild disorder this afternoon.

Wingo attacked Jones during a debate and a dozen other Congressmen entered the fray amid flying fists to separate the belligerents. No one was injured, although it appeared a small sized riot was in progress for a while.

While the two Congressmen were wrestling in a centre aisle scores of other members shouted for the sergeant-at-arms, who was not in sight. Above the tumult pounded the gavel of the Speaker, wielded by Representative McArthur of Oregon. Neither Wingo nor Jones paid any attention to their colleagues but continued to wield their fists.

A dozen members leaped upon them, pulled them apart and forced them into nearby seats. Order was finally restored, Wingo leaving the chamber, while Jones apologized to the House for his conduct.

GIRL PLUNGES 100 FEET TO DEATH IN SEA

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—Leaping from a cliff at Point Fermin, near San Pedro, a pretty girl about 25 years old committed suicide today. She fell more than 100 feet.

"SWEET ADELINE" FOR THREE YEARS HAS BEEN MOTHER

CHILD KEPT CONCEALED IN FLAT

> "It was former Mayor Fitzgerald who dubbed her his ideal of Sweet Adeline, the Lady Guinevere of the corner quartettes. . . . Times change. Songs change. Names change. Patrolman Montgomery, nursing his face, asked Nurse Paul, who was dressing her scratched features: 'Who is that dame? She must be Tough Tessie.'"
> —Boston American, Feb. 7.

Songs do change.

"Sweet Adeline" is now "Mother o' Mine."

There's a beautiful apartment at No. 95 Mason terrace, Brookline. In it lives Josephine Lawson, whose flower-like face inspired a former mayor of Boston to give her the nickname of "Sweet Adeline." Another tenant of the handsome apartment is a three-year-old girl child.

She's Josephine's daughter. Josephine denies it vehemently. The name on the bell in the ornate lobby downstairs is Josephine Lawson.

But the little girl is Josephine's child. The baby doesn't admit it. She has been told not to. She hangs her head when people ask her what her name is.

Her father is Robert D. Farrington, wealthy State street broker. He, too, denies his parentage. But he's Dorothy's father.

Mr. Farrington is the man who, ten days ago, was mauled by Josephine in a spectacular scene in front of the Touraine Hotel which drew a curious crowd. After she used up her strength by trying to beat away the smile that persisted on Farrington's face, she dropped to the street in a hysterical collapse and was taken to City Hospital where she beat up a nurse and attacked a policeman.

This was the gentle "Sweet Adeline," darling of the youths who used to stand in line in Thompson's Spa in order that they might receive their rations from her own slim hands. Questioned about the incident, Farrington said he knew her only casually. He hinted that liquor was behind the attack she made on him.

This was the man for whom Josephine gave up her engagement to a youth of Somerville, George Dixon, who loved her and wanted to marry her. It was Josephine who was named as correspondent when in 1917, Mrs. Edith D. Farrington sued for divorce.

BIRTH RECORD PROOF.

The birth records at the City Hall show that on December 26, 1919 there was born to Robert D. Farrington and Josephine Lawson a baby girl, who was to be named Dorothy Farrington. The child was born at the Newton Hospital.

In the days of the spa counter, Josephine lived with her widowed father in a plain little frame house in Somerville. It was there that young George Dixon used to call on Wednesday evenings, and aid in the matter of economizing on gas bills.

Now Josephine lives in a luxurious apartment, gorgeously furnished. Her daughter has a nurse. She has a maid to wait on her. Neighbors say that she keeps very much to herself. The only visitor she has, they say, is Farrington.

Farrington is the only one who knows the number of the privately-listed telephone in the apartment.

Delia, the maid, ushered the reporter in. Then Josephine came out and icily demanded what was wanted. She was not the same girl who inspired "Honey" Fitz to dub her "Sweet Adeline." Nor was she the woman Policeman Montgomery called "Tough Tessie" after she had attacked him in the City Hospital.

She was just—Josephine Lawson. A little stouter than the Josephine of the spa. The smile not so demure as of old.

Dorothy came into the room, too. Miss Lawson was asked who the child was and who was her mother.

"It's nobody's business," she retorted.

"Is the child yours?"

And she swept out of the room. Delia smiled sadly at this person. This person bent down and spoke to Dorothy, who lingered.

Delia, frightened, insisted at this point on showing this person out. This person journeyed to the office of Mr. Farrington on State street.

The person entered the private office of Mr. Farrington, and asked him a simple and most civil question:

"Mr. Farrington, do you know Josephine Lawson?"

That person happens to be a woman. Mr. Farrington was educated at Harvard. But he forgot his Harvard training. He slammed his door in the face of that person. A fragment of a profane parting wafted through the closed door.

Springfield, Feb. 17.—The Board of Health today received the following telegram from Henry G. Wolpert, a salesman of this city, from Rochester, N. Y.:

"My wife wires me one of our children sick. Ordered coal weeks ago from Sullivan Coal Company, but no coal yet. Unless you take care of her at once and supply coal, will leave for Springfield tonight and steal as much coal as I need, regardless of consequences. Phone my wife your decision at once."

SCHOOLS OPEN TO COLD WAVE REFUGEES

Lowell, Feb. 17.—The City Council today appropriated $8000 to buy coal to be sold at cost to families in necessity.

At the same time Mayor John J. Donovan ordered the Memorial Auditorium and twenty-one public school buildings thrown open to refugees from the intense cold.

Schools in all sections of the city will be available for fuel-less families seeking warmth. The buildings will be kept open night and day if necessary until the cold wave breaks.

REFUSES INJUNCTION TO MINE WORKERS

Charlestown, W. Va., Feb. 17.—The petition of the United Mine Workers for an injunction to prevent Sheriff Don Chafin of Logan County and other from interferring with the organization's activities in that county, was ordered dismissed today by Federal Judge George W. McClintic.

SHUTS GAMING HOUSES IN R. I.

Narragansett Pier, Cranston, East Greenwich, Johnston, Thornton, North Providence and Marieville were locked up tight as drums today and there was mourning among the gentry.

Deputy Sheriff Sanford S. Kinnecom, attached to the Attorney-General's Office, was instructed to make a round of the gambling houses and warn them to quit operations at once.

WARNED BY "UNDERGROUND."

Governor Flynn was surprised and not a little elated to hear that the majority of the big resorts had suspended before the visit of the officer. Warnings had been sent out via underground channels, although none but a small group of officials knew of the official plans.

The question on everyone's lips was "How long will the reform lid remain clapped down?" It was recalled that Governor Beekman attempted a similar roundup four or five years ago, but the gamblers were plying their trade as briskly as ever within a week.

The Democrats made the gambling evil a prominent plank in their platform in the campaign that resulted in the election of Governor Flynn. They charged that Republican laxity and patronage was responsible for gambling conditions that were a blot on the State.

Among the first resorts visited were Tom Moran's place in Marieville and Moran's other resort known as Anthony Inn in North Providence. Deputy Kinnecom next called at Hilltop Inn in East Greenwich, run by James Connolly.

Kinnecom reported that every resort visited had been swept clean of all gambling devices before his arrival, showing that a friendly tip had preceded. Where the "leak" came from puzzled the State officials.

Moran's resort at Marieville was known, say the authorities, to have been equipped with six or eight roulette wheels, a faro layout, a horse pool room and a "bankers'" crap game." Stakes were high at both of his places, it was said.

No evidence was found at Anthony Inn on Charles street, North Providence, nor any other place visited. Deputy Sheriff Kinnecom learned that "Frinner Stand," a famous gaming resort in Thornton, had voluntarily closed on Tuesday, as the proprietor had received word of the crusade.

A horse racing "book," roulette wheels and faro were used there.

One of the most exclusive resorts closed was the Pilgrim Auto Inn in Auburn. This was patronized by wealthy business men. The rabble were not allowed. It had the reputation of being one of the biggest roulette resorts in New England. Equipment was dismantled there as early as Tuesday.

ATTACK FRENCH WITH BOMBS IN RUHR

Karlsruhe, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—Dr. Meyer and Dr. Muehler, of the Baden government, who went to Offenburg to estimate the damage caused by French occupation were arrested there today and taken to Mayence for court-martial.

Dusseldorf, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press). — Bomb throwing and serious cases of sabotage occurred in the Ruhr valley during the night.

A bomb was thrown in a street in Essen near the Kaiserhof Hotel, the French engineers' headquarters, where Chief Engineer Coste and thirty or forty other civil engineers are lodged. No injuries resulted.

The windows of the hotel were broken. The bomb thrower escaped. It is thought possible the bomb was thrown from the roof of a neighboring building.

Difficulty in transportation is being caused the French by the Germans, in sinking two loaded barges in the channel of the Rhine-Herne Canal, one of the main arteries of water communication in the Ruhr.

Another strike has occurred among the miners of the Krupp Pits at Bochum, 16,000 men going out because the mine officials were arrested for obstructing the work of the French Commission.

Guerilla War Like That in Erin Begun

Dusseldorf, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—Guerilla warfare similar to that in Ireland, is breaking out in the Ruhr, according to reports to French headquarters.

German youths armed with revolvers are creating terror. An attempt was made to shoot General Caignelot of the French forces.

Sniping has broken out at some places where officers charge, young German gunmen are trying to pick off French sentries.

It is understood General DeGoutte has requested reinforcements. The French positions at Essen have been strengthened.

The disturbances followed the sentence of the burgomaster of Oberhausen to three years in jail, and the acting mayor of Essen to two years as well as a fine of 10,000,000 marks.

Essen Municipal Electric Works employees have voted to cut off the city's current as result of the 5,000,000 marks fine imposed on the director of the plant for refusing to supply light to the Kaiserhof Hotel, French military headquarters.

Burgomaster Jarres of Duisburg today was sentenced to one month in jail by a Belgian military court for disobedience. He took an appeal. Duisburg is in the Franco-Belgian zone of military occupation. The trial took place at Aix-La-Chappelle.

Lithuanians and Poles in Skirmish

Warsaw, Feb. 17.—Several new skirmishes are reported between Polish police and Lithuanian irregulars, followed by the entry of Polish guards into the neutral zone between Poland and Lithuania, under the terms recently laid down by the League of Nations Council. One man was killed and several wounded. Official advices show the Poles have entered various villages in the area assigned to them.

DRUG CLERK'S ERROR BRINGS JAIL TERM

Mineola, L. I., Feb. 17.—A suspended sentence of from two to five years at Sing Sing was given today to Samuel Berkowitz, a drug clerk, who made a mistake in filling out a prescription.

The mistake resulted in the death of Mrs. Anna Ganz. Berkowitz pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter.

LYNN PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF "WILD PARTY"

Was a wild party in a residence in Grosvenor Park, Lynn, in which wine and women played prominent roles, hushed up because a prominent city official was present?

Residents of the "diamond district" say they complained to the police at the hilarity that disturbed the neighborhood for five days this week. They say they reported seeing Boston taxis, arriving with girl guests and suspicious looking cases.

They say they saw women emerge at intervals to "walk off" their intoxication on the boulevard. An orchestra was among the attractions.

The alleged party ended today. But neighbors say they complained five days ago, and that police officers did not dare interfere, they think, because of "a prominent guest."

DESERVED TO BE KNOCKED DOWN, SAYS JUDGE

"You committed an unprovoked brutal assault and you should have been knocked down."

Judge Hayden so declared in Roxbury Court today to Joseph M. Wartow, printer, sentenced to one month in the House of Correction for kicking his former employer, Harry L. Smith of No. 96 Olney street, Dorchester.

When Wartow begged for leniency, saying his family was poor, the court changed the jail sentence to a $25 fine and allowed Wartow time to pay.

Smith testified he was a witness when Wartow was held for the Grand Jury on charges of larceny from the Typographical Union and that Wartow kicked him today without provocation while he was waiting for a car at Grove Hall. Wartow denied any larceny and said he kicked Smith when the latter called him a crook.

NEVADA BACK IN 'WET' COLUMN AS A STATE

Reno, Nev., Feb. 17.—Nevada was back into the "wet" column today the Legislature having repassed over the Governor's veto the existing prohibition laws. At the same time the Legislature passed the Whiteley prohibition law, adopting the Volstead law as the law of Nevada, but until the Governor signs it no State law will prohibit the liquor traffic. Doubt as to the constitutionality of the Whiteley law may lead to its veto, it was indicated.

UNION OFFICIAL IS EXPELLED AS SPY

Providence, Feb. 17.—Fred Miller, president of the Providence Central Federated Union, and former executive board member of Division 618, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, was expelled from his union here for reporting the doings of the union to the United Electric Railways Company. Miller is said to have been receiving $10 a day for his services to the street railway company.

Another Ruhr Town Seized

Essen, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—French troops today occupied Gelsenkirchen in reprisal for the refusal of the municipality to pay the 100,000,000 marks fine imposed earlier in the week.

Gelsenkirchen is three miles northeast of Essen and contains the most important of Hugo Stinnes' steel and iron works. The fine followed the shooting of two French soldiers after a German policeman had been wounded.

The French said they would remain until the fine was paid.

WOMAN DEAD, 2 GIRLS BURNED, IN SCHOOL FIRE

Baltimore millionaire, was confined to the infirmary with scarlet fever. She was carried to the yard and laid for one-half hour there before an ambulance could get through. The temperature stood at zero then.

Among the girls who fled were Miss Barbara Crane, grand daughter of W. Murray Crane, Miss Helen Gerard, niece of the former Ambassador to Germany, and Miss Elizabeth Buell of Hartford.

The loss is estimated at $150,000. The building was filled with valuable antique mahogany furniture which cannot be duplicated.

Miss Elizabeth Buell of Hartford, Ct., sister of Charles Buell the Harvard football captain, was among the girls who were forced into the cold with the thermometer not far above zero.

The fire was discovered about 1:15. Miss Coote was ill on the second floor of the building. She was seen at a window, but men who made their way into the room were unable to find her.

20 RESCUED; 2 HURT, AT FIRE IN LOWELL

Lowell, Feb. 17.—Twenty women and children were carried down ladders, two firemen were hurt and an entire tenement block destroyed today when fire raced through a three-story eight-family tenement building at Thatcher and Cushing streets.

A delay of a few minutes would have meant that a score of people would have been roasted alive. The fire started on the second floor of the three-story building and gained so rapidly that escape on the upper floor was cut off.

Women, some of them with children in their arms, appeared at the windows, and the firemen did some of the fastest work in their careers getting the ladders up.

In the rush of making several trips up one of the ladders, Fireman Joseph Rogers slipped on one of the icy rungs and fell, fracturing two of his ribs. He was taken to the hospital.

ROBBED FRIEND IN JAIL FOR SHOOTING

Frank Wallace and Charles Battles of Chelsea were firm friends. But Wallace admitted in Chelsea court today he broke into Battles' home at No. 14 Hawthorne street, and stole $70 worth of clothing while Battles was in Charles street jail on a charge of assault in shooting Mrs. Battles. The latter was in a hospital with a bullet wound in one leg. Mrs. Battles exonerated her husband, saying the shooting was accidental. A "no bill" was returned and Battles was released from jail in time to assist in pinning the theft on his erstwhile chum. Wallace received a six months sentence today and appealed. The principals in this case are colored.

ABSOLVES ALL IN PEABODY FATALITY

Peabody, Feb. 17.—All principals in the grade-crossing accident at West Peabody last June which caused the death of four Roxbury boys and the injury of two others were absolved of blame today by Special Justice Horace P. Farnham. The 84-page report filed by him showed that the engineer of the train whistled before he reached the crossing and that the signal bell was ringing. Leonard A. Coppenraith, driver of the automobile containing the five others, heard neither, and when he finally perceived the train, was unable to stop in time to avoid striking the engine cab.

PRESIDENT EMERITUS TUCKER IS ILL

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 17.—William Jewett Tucker, president emeritus of Dartmouth College, is seriously ill at his home here. His physician declined today to discuss the nature of the illness or to make any prediction as to the outcome. Dr. Tucker, who retired from the active presidency in 1909, is 83 years old.

Broken Hearts at 6 Cents
They Found His Mummy
Francs Down, Marks Up Again
Speculation, Some Wild

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1923, Star Co

A NEW YORK legislator would make six cents a maximum allowance for breach of promise. The learned legislator remarked: "There ain't no broken heart in the world that's worth more than six cents."

THE ALBANY solon forgets that today, as in the past, marriage is woman's only real business. A woman with her engagement broken is considered "second hand" by some foolish men. She does suffer actually financial damages.

Besides, she ought to be paid something for listening to the foolish things that men say, and reading the asinine letters they write, in their first fitful fever of infatuation.

THEY HAVE opened Tutankhamen's sealed tomb at last and there found the sarcophagus of the Pharoah, magnificent coffin, in which the royal mummy was put so many centuries ago. X-rays will explore that mummy and chart its bones, if still there.

It was a rich tomb, all the details of its contents you will read later. We study ancient remains for their historical value. In the Middle Ages ancient mummies were ground up, the powder put in medicines, supposed to cure various diseases. We have improved on that.

FRENCH FRANCS fell down again yesterday, and German money again went up. Exchange speculators have made a harvest, if they speculated the right way.

ALL RAILROADS earned an average net profit of 4.40 per cent. in 1922, an improvement of more than 33 per cent. over 1921. Some money will be made in railroad speculation, also a lot lost. Look out.

THERE WAS wild speculation in sugar again. Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce was kind enough to predict that the people this coming year would eat 700,000 tons more sugar than last year, and that the crop was short. That was all the speculators needed. Now the Department says there will be a surplus of 476,000 tons. But that comes too late to check the boom. You will have the pleasure of paying for it. That's all the news about speculation and such things.

IT MAY SURPRISE you to read a statement made in the House of Commons by Philip Snowden, a man well informed. He declares that while her government is poor, practically bankrupt (for the reason that she dare not tax her citizens, peasants especially), France is actually the richest nation in the world. Her savings and the recovery of her exports is the foundation of her extraordinary prosperity.

The English, having arranged to pay us, now want the French to pay them. That won't be easily arranged.

TCHITCHERIN, who manages foreign affairs for Russia, and seems to do well, says there is no war coming in Europe immediately. It takes money to go to war, as it does to go on any other kind of a spree. Europe has got to collect herself and collect some money before she will be ready for fresh fighting, so say he and others.

Tchitcherin was described by Lloyd George as "the demon of mischief in Europe's international affairs." You can't be quite sure what he means.

THERE MAY NOT be war, but some correspondents predict violent outbreaks against the French in Germany at any moment. If they come they will be ruthlessly and effectively suppressed. French officials report that Germany is thoroughly disarmed. She has more trained officers and more trained fighting men than any nation in Europe. But, without weapons, men can do little.

However, even without weapons, men have done much when really desperate. It is all guesswork as yet.

THOSE INTERESTED in the welfare of France will note with satisfaction that she has money to lend, and she has just

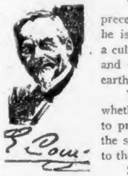
SELF MASTERY Through Conscious AUTOSUGGESTION

Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE

PAGE 14

In all these experiments, I cannot repeat too often, it is not suggestion properly so-called which produces the phenomena, but the autosuggestion which is consecutive to the suggestion of the operator.



E. Coué

When the subject has passed through the preceding experiments and has understood them, he is ripe for curative suggestion. He is like a cultivated field in which the seed can germinate and develop, whereas before it was but rough earth in which it would have perished.

Whatever ailment the subject suffers from, whether it is physical or mental, it is important to proceed always in the same way, and to use the same words with a few variations according to the case.

Say to the subject: "Sit down and close your eyes. I am not going to try and put you to sleep as it is quite unnecessary. I ask you to close your eyes simply in order that your attention may not be distracted by the objects around us. Now tell yourself that every word I say is going to fix itself in your mind, and be printed, engraved, and encrusted in it, that, there, it is going to stay fixed, imprinted, and encrusted, and that without your will or knowledge, in fact perfectly unconsciously on your part, you yourself and your whole organism are going to obey. In the first place I say that every day, three times a day, in the morning, at midday, and in the evening, at the usual meal times, you will feel hungry, that is to say, you will experience the agreeable sensation which makes you think and say: "Oh! how nice it will be to have something to eat!" You will then eat and enjoy your food, without of course overeating. You will also be careful to masticate it properly so as to transform it into a sort of soft paste before swallowing it. In these conditions you will digest it properly, and so feel no discomfort, inconvenience, or pain of any kind either in the stomach or intestines. You will assimilate what you eat and your organism will make use of it to make blood, muscle, strength and energy, in a word: [illegible]

YOU WILL ENJOY YOUR MEALS WITHOUT OVEREATING...

BOSTON PEGGY HELD WITH 3 FOR THEFT

Boston boasts a Peggy Joyce who in her own subtle fashion is as much of a charmer as the Peggy Joyce of international fame who recently caused much distress to Mrs. Mary Evans Spaulding of the Copley-Plaza.

Her methods are more direct.

This Miss Joyce, who is sometimes known as Peggy Rivest, and sometimes by other names, was arraigned today before Judge Lourie in Municipal Court on a charge of robbery. With her, arraigned on the same charge, were: Mary Welsh, Walter Corbin and Benjamin Dandbridge, the latter a negro, all of the South End. All were held in bail of $2,000 each.

Miss Joyce functions as the come-on, or lure, for a group of thugs who use her to entice victims to places where the robbery may be effected without undue publicity, according to police. She has been in court a dozen times or more.

In this case the complainant is George Williams of Brighton. He said he ran it to the Welsh girl in a South End resort. Williams accompanied her to the home of Dandbridge.

Liquor was served. Peggy came in and joined the party. Others drifted in. It came Williams' turn to buy a drink. He took the first drink from the bottle that was served.

When he recovered consciousness he was out in the street, lying on the pavement, minus $115 and a gold watch and chain. Patrolmen Arthur Tiernan and Edward Kelley, who worked on the case, arrested seven, of which four were held.

PRINCE OF DENMARK ESCAPES DISASTER

San Francisco, Feb. 17.—Prince Waldemar of Denmark and his son, aboard the motor ship Peru, went through some of the bad weather which brought disaster to four ships on the Pacific Coast this week, but their vessel escaped safely and was due to dock here today.

FINDING OF 'TUT' CAUSES 'RUN' ON MUSEUM

New York, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press.)—A run on Egyptology was reported today by the Metropolitan Museum of Art after the opening yesterday in the Valley of the Kings near Luxor, of the tomb of Pharoah Tutenkhamun.

Roused by the romance of a civilization long dead, the richness of which was so emphasized by the discoveries in the secret crypt, hewn into the limestone cliffs of the Valley of the Kings nearly 33 centuries ago, hundreds of visitors toured the Egyptian section of the museum, seeking lost light on the Egypt of long ago, when the pharoahs of the old testament were making Biblical history.

Besides photographs of the Valley of the Kings, showing the scene of Tutenkhamun's tombs, the visitors were rewarded by the sight of a picture of Tutenkhamun on his throne, hewn into the stone tomb of his viceroy for Ethiopia, Huy, by hands stilled for more than 3,000 years.

Another exhibit about which hundreds swarmed was a ring bearing the dead king's name, which was found in another tomb several years ago. The ring presumably was given by Tutenkhamun to one of his visitors as an emblem of authority.

LIVING COST JUMPS 13 PER CENT. IN YEAR

Washington, Feb. 17. — While wholesale prices in the United States reacted to some extent in January from the upward movement of recent months, says a report today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, no change in the general price level is shown by the index number, covering 404 commodities, which again stands at 156, as it did in November and December.

Comparing prices in January with those of a year ago, the report continues that the general price level has risen 13 per cent.

MARRIED MEN VOICE PROTEST

"Might as Well Tax Births," Says One; "Same as Paying 2 Taxes," Says Another

Boston's benedicts are protesting.

The proposed poll tax for all women of the State, recommended to the Legislature by the Special Commission on Expenditures and Taxation, has started the fireworks all along the line.

Not that two dollars will send them to the poorhouse but the fact that, in most cases, they are really paying a double poll tax and the bachelors have only to dig up for their own assessment.

A majority of Boston housewives do not contribute, financially, to the family income. That means, of course, that husband has to pay.

WHY NOT TAX CHILDREN?

"Why they might as well put a tax on all children that are born," declared Attorney Raymond Delano today. "It is just a crude method of getting some more money for the city, county and State to spend. Poll taxes, at best, are antiquated. I believe in taxes that will make a man or a corporation contribute to the support of the community in which he lives or does business. But to tax the women—why they may as well place a price on the head of every infant born. It would be about as just to the family man."

Judge Frank Leveroni of the Juvenile Court said:

"It will undoubtedly be a hardship to the married men. The only item in favor is the fact that the tax will amount to only $2. If it were any more I would feel it as a distinct hindrance to married men."

ALL OPPOSED.

A canvass of a Boston business office revealed the fact that of twenty married men interviewed they were unanimously opposed to this form of taxation.

Said one of them:

"A single man pays his own tax and forgets it. But the married man who has a wife and several children to support has to pay his own and his wife's tax. Is that fair? It is all right for the married women who can ride around in limousines to pay poll tax, but what about the wife of a man who has to ride in street cars, or walk?

Here is what a married woman, Mrs. Susan E. Stevens, president of the Patriot Dames, has to say on the matter:

"I think that married women, whose husbands are the sole support of the family, should be exempted from paying any poll taxes. It is simply making the husband pay two poll taxes instead of one. And the married man, in this case, can least afford to do that."

JILTED WOMAN TO SUE "COCA COLA KING"

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17.—Albert Howell, Atlanta attorney for Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel, prominent socially in New Orleans, was to file suit in the United States District Court here today against Asa G. Candler, aged "Coca Cola King." While Mr. Howell would not disclose the nature of the suit prior to its filing, it is understood $500,000 damages will be asked. Mr. Candler and Mrs. De Bouchel were to have been married last August in California. Wedding announcements had been received from the engravers when the engagement was broken by Mr. Candler.

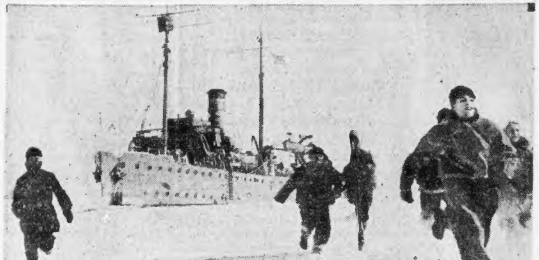
SAVE ICE-BOUND ISLANDERS



FOOD SUPPLIES LANDED BY COAST GUARD

TURKS HANG 5 CHRISTIANS AT SMYRNA

Constantinople, Feb. 17.—Five Christians were hanged by the Turkish authorities at Smyrna on Friday, charged with aiding the Greeks in the Turco-Greek war, said a dispatch from that city today.

This dispatch said the situation was quiet and that the foreign warships were still in the harbor. Ismet Pasha arrived here on shipboard and was visited by an aide to General Harrington, British commander-in-chief. Ismet sent word ashore that he would leave at once for Smyrna.

DRY LAW CLOSES IMPERIAL CLUB

The famous old Suffolk Club latterly the Imperial Club, has closed its doors at No. 8 Beacon street. Poverty is the reason given by the president, Attorney Edward S. Hill of Boston.

The club existed more than 45 years, and members included some of the best known business men of Boston. According to President Hill, the club plans to secure new quarters and carry on again next Fall. The furniture has been placed in storage.

"The club has been running behind for a long time," said Mr. Hill today. "Ever since prohibition came along the finances have dwindled. With prohibition the dining room lost money. Then the rent went up until we were paying $5,000 a year. We lost about 70 members last year. The monthly deficit amounted to about $200."

ICE-BOUND HULL FOOD SUPPLIES LANDED

After three days of storm-bound privation, residents of Hull and Pemberton were relieved today, when a quantity of provisions was landed on Point Pemberton, assuring a real Sunday dinner.

A steamer from the Army Base, which for three days had been battering the ice without success, today forced a passage to the Point and landed the precious provisions. A squadron of motor trucks in waiting, loaded up and started over the snow-filled roads to Pemberton and Hull.

Train service failed some time ago, truck traffic over the roads from Boston became impossible, and the heavy ice prevented boats from landing. It is impossible even yet for steamers to reach Hull.

At the same time a wireless was received at Boston division headquarters of the coastguard from the cutter Ossipee, at work as an icebreaker in Penobscot Bay, Maine. She reported having broken through the heavy ice to Dark Harbor, Long Island, where twenty tons of provisions were landed for the villagers of Ilesboro. The Ossipee then continued to Stonington and Searsport, where the inhabitants were waiting on the ice for coal, provisions and mail. There was a serious shortage of food, and the coal supply in both places was exhausted.

"Dick" Sears, motion picture operator for International Film Service, is a passenger aboard the Ossipee, "shooting" the scenes of ice-locked desolation in Penobscot Bay, and the rejoicing inhabitants of Isleboro, Stonington and Searsport when the relief cutter appeared.

Crude Oil Up 10 Cents

Tulsazn, Okla., Feb. 17.—The Prairie Oil & Gas Company today posted an advance of ten cents a barrel in the price of Mid-Continent crude oil. The increase is the sixth this year.

TO CRUSH IRISH REVOLT, WARNS COSGRAVE

Dublin, Feb. 17.—Republicans are attempting to buy guns and ammunition from Soviet Russia to carry on war against the Irish Free State, President William T. Cosgrave charged today. The government published letters written by Mary MacSwiney to De Valera criticizing him for "leniency," and urging the Republicans to issue the minimum peace terms.

By the Associated Press

Dublin, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—President Cosgrave today issued a "last-word" statement on the peace question in which he says the government "is determined to put down this revolt against democracy regardless of the cost."

"Let no man be deceived" the statement says.

"If anyone continues in this unnatural war upon his own people after the expiration of the stated period of amnesty, he must be prepared to pay the price in full, for there will be no going back upon this.

"Furthermore, it must be clearly understood that there will be no meeting for negotiations on the part of the government with De Valera Liam Lynch or any of their collaborators in destruction, male or female."

The amnesty period proclaimed by the Free State government on February 8 as the result of Liam Deasy's peace appeal will expire tomorrow.

NEUTRALS SUBMIT PLAN.

President Cosgrave's statement shared public interest with the truce proposal of the association of neutral members of the Irish Republican army. This organization, which is understood to have been interested for some time in finding a solution for Ireland's internal troubles, suggests that the Free State government and the Republicans cease their hostilities for one month, during which time the neutrals would put forth their peace proposals.

The suggestion has been sent to leaders on both sides with a request for a reply by February 23.

As a condition to the proposed truce, the Republicans would cease all military activities and all aggressive acts against persons and property. The Free State government on its part, would suspend all trials and executions, as well as military activities, and would make no arrests.

ROMANCE WRECKED BY DOPE

"Guardian" of Beautiful Waif Tells the Story of Their Love, With Tragic Climax

Here is the romance of Tarzan, for whom even her own brothers-and-sisters-in-opium feel a deep pity.

In the midst of Boston's centre of Bohemian dissenters is the studio of John Semple, artist and art designer. This was the home of Evelyn Stanfield, now known as "Tarzan," before her lotus dreams turned to ashes with her arrest in the Back Bay apartment of Sammie Ong, Jap Tech student.

John Semple's studio is at No. 80 Washington street. The building is old and shabby and rickety. But the studio is gorgeous. It is filled with many fine pictures. The face of Tarzan smiles in oil and in water color from many a canvas. A few show the face of Anita Stewart, for whom John Semple has done much work.

ESCAPED TO BOSTON.

Hatless and coatless, Tarzan wandered into John's studio one day—and stayed. He never asked any questions, but she told him herself how in 1906, a motherless little Danish girl of 5, she came to America and went to live in a little Virginia town.

Unrestrained by the watchful care of a mother, well supplied with funds from her wealthy father, beautiful and loved by many men, it did not take long for the path she trod to lead to a sanitarium at White Plains, N. Y.

She escaped from the sanitarium, lured by the drug-urge that is stronger than barred doors, stole a ride on a motor truck, hopped a freight and thus came to Boston and to John Semple.

"Her guardian," Semple calls himself. When an American reporter visited the studio he opened a closet. There were many feminine things hanging within — dainty smocks, dresses, hats.

WAITING FOR HER.

"They are all here," he said simply. "They are here waiting for her."

He told how she came to him after her escape from the sanitarium.

"One night I heard a pebble at my window. A moment later there came a knock at the door. I opened the door. She stood there, hatless, coatless, her golden hair tumbled about her face, beautiful and hysterical. I let her come in."

"This is her couch." He pointed through the open door into a darkened half kitchen, half dining room. "I sleep in there. She has gone from me, but her couch is still here. I used to make it up myself."

SCREAMS TO GET OUT.

Boston knows the rest of the story. Today Tarzan presses her face against the uncurtained window of a room in the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. A nurse enters. In a rage the girl screams:

"Let me out! I want to see Jackie. I want to go back to Sammie!"

Jackie is John Semple.

Sammie is the Jap.

LAWRENCE SLAYER SENTENCED TO LIFE

Salem, Feb. 17.—Vito Caruso, Lawrence, was sentenced by Judge Quinn in Superior Court today to life imprisonment for the murder of his wife Maria at Lawrence last July. Caruso was convicted of second degree murder some weeks ago. Sentence was deferred pending exceptions.

FUEL OIL POURS INTO HUB WHILE COAL IS HELD UP

Meanwhile Production of Bituminous Drops One Million Tons a Week

The Commission stated, in the telegrams sent to the railroad heads, that priority coal orders might retard any plans that Federal Fuel Administrator Wadleigh and General Goethals already had for delivering coal to the distressed districts.

An embargo on American coal to Canada is doubtful, however, according to Washington dispatches. Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission were quoted as saying that the embargo method of relief was "neither practicable nor politic."

The indication was that whatever relief is forthcoming will be in the way of railroad regulation, rather than stoppage of shipments of coal across the Canadian border.

Big Jump in Receipts of Fuel Oil Here

In 1922, according to the leading authority of the coal trade, the Coal Age, New England got only 56 per cent. as much hard coal as it got in 1921. But in the same year New England got 85 per cent. as much soft coal as it got in 1921. That is 29 per cent. more soft coal than hard coal.

Another startling fact set forth by Coal Age is the widespread use in New England of crude oil as a substitute for coal. Crude oil during 1922 poured into New England at the highest rate on record.

In 1918, New England got 112,719,100 gallons of fuel oil. In 1921 448,217,000 gallons came in. In 1922 the receipts were 730,742,000 gallons, an increase of almost 700 per cent. in four years!

And a remarkable feature is that the railroads seemed to have no trouble at all in delivering these huge quantities of fuel oil. There is no record of long strings of fuel oil cars held up and sidetracked for weeks as there is of coal cars.

Another phenomenon: Within the last month, or since the Boston American investigation of the coal situation, the production of soft coal dropped over a million tons a week, and soft coal dropped 16 points in price since February 5.

How is the enormous increase in fuel oil in New England to be explained? Who are the persons and corporations profiting from it?

Perhaps the answer to these questions may uncover the Senegambian in the coal pile.

CLOSELY GUARD SUN YAT SEN

Hong Kong, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—Sun Yat Sen, former president of South China, arrived here today from Shanghai on his way to Canton, his capital, recently recaptured. Police and detectives guarded the dock and not more than twenty Chinese were allowed to pass the cordon and go aboard the ship to receive Dr. Sun.

Curley Wires Harding to Get More Coal

Mayor Curley.

"The fuel situation in Massachusetts is so acute as to render anthracite shipments out of the United States not only menacing to the health of the public but possibly destructive to industries. The present supply of anthracite in Boston, in control of leading dealers, is insufficient to meet requirements of an unusually severe Winter for more than two days.

"Boston, Massachusetts, in fact all New England, looks to you, as leader of the nation, for protection in the present crisis and trusts that an embargo on anthracite may be established until at least March 10."

CHARGES 25-LB. BAG OF COAL IS MOSTLY SLATE

When is coal not coal?

When it is three-quarters slate.

That's the answer that Herman G. Lythgoe, director of the State food and drug division at the State House, found when he examined a twenty-five pound bag of minerals submitted to him by Patrolman Charles W. Reick of Somerville for analysis.

The analysis, the police say, showed 18½ pounds of slate and only 6½ pounds of coal.

On this and later investigation Patrolman Reick secured complaints in Somerville Court today against Jacob Adams of the Adams Coal Company of No. 279 Beacon street, Somerville. There are three charges against Adams, who is expected back from Pennsylvania tomorrow. He will be notified to appear in court Tuesday to answer to the charges, which are:

Fraudulently selling forty bags of coal to Frank Agudo.

Selling to Garabed Tarzian thirteen bags of coal of thirty-five pounds weight each, said bags not being plainly marked with the name of the person putting up the coal.

The bag of minerals had been bought as coal by F. W. Haynes of No. 30 Appleton street, West Somerville. He bought it in a Somerville store for 32 cents.

BEVERLY WOMAN LENDS CITY COAL

Beverly, Feb. 17.—Twenty-five tons of hard coal, part of a 85-ton stock laid in by Mrs. John J. Henry of Beverly, have been lent to the city of Beverly for distribution to those in need of coal.

Last Summer Mrs. Henry stocked the bins of her Ober street mansion when a coal shortage first threatened. She has sixty tons left and is leaving shortly for California.

Twenty-five tons were hauled by the wagons of the Public Works Department today from the Henry house to the city stable. It will be sold only to persons in need of coal and in only 100-pound lots. The price will be 80 cents per hundred pounds.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR LIEUT. WHITE

Civic and military officials attended the funeral today of Lieutenant Thomas J. White, of No. 133 St. Alphonsus street, Roxbury, one of the first young men of that section to respond to the call in 1917. A military funeral, under the direction of Roxbury Post, V. F. W., was held. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at Mission Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, where a volley was fired by a detail from the 13th Infantry.

FINDS PASSION PLAY FINE WAS 'ALL WRONG'

Union Hills, N. J., Feb. 17.—Delving deep into the law which had led him to fine the Rev. Joseph N. Grieff, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Family, one dollar for violating the vice and immorality act by presenting the "Passion Play" on Sunday, Recorder Hauenstein found that he was all wrong. Religious performances are exempt. He returned the dollar.

CHICAGO BANKER GUILTY OF FRAUD

Chicago, Feb. 17.—John W. Worthington, former private banker whose financial flights have several times been under scrutiny of State and Federal authorities, today was found guilty by a jury in Federal Court of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. He was head of the Mercantile Security and Investment Company.

STUDENT BOTH HANDLESS AND BLIND

A terrific explosion at the mouth of a silver mine on a mountain top in Nephi, Utah, destroyed the sight of the twenty-one-year old student, who was part owner, and tore both hands from his body.

Fifteen years later a blind man, without hands, making a short-cut along a railroad track, suddenly sensed that an engine was bearing down on him. Instead of running on the next track, as was customary, he leaped aside, the tender brushing his cheek.

Fate has thus worked with N. C. Hanks, a student and informal lecturer at Harvard, who lives with his wife at Boylston Chambers, Harvard square. When not attending school he tours the country lecturing.

His name does not remind one of Nancy Hanks by accident, for his grandfather was a first cousin of Abraham Lincoln's mother. Mr. Hanks is a native of the Rocky Mountains and has "a little cottage in Idaho, amid sand and sagebrush," to which he and his wife retire for rest.

"A blind man is like anybody else, only with his eyes closed," said Mr. Hanks. "You remember persons by their faces. I remember them by their voices. I have recognized acquaintances after a lapse of twelve years and in cities where I hadn't the least expectation of meeting them."

DERAILMENT ON B. & A. DELAYS COMMUTERS

Hundreds of passengers bound in and out of Boston were delayed for a long period today by derailment of several cars on a Boston & Albany freight train at North Grafton, near Worcester.

While one of the stalled trains was waiting to get around the wreck the cries of an infant on the train became so insistent that a trainman waded through huge drifts of snow to the nearest farmhouse and obtained a supply of milk for the baby.

Both main tracks were blocked and all trains went around the blockade on a single track. Express trains from Albany and Buffalo, due in Boston at 6:20 and 6:55 a. m., doubled up at Worcester and arrived in the Hub shortly before 9 a. m.

NEW BOARD IN CONTROL OF STEEL'S

The satisfactory condition of the financial affairs and management of L. R. Steel Co., Inc., Steel's Department Stores, the Steel Realty Development Corporation and subsidiary enterprises, at the present time, is disclosed by a brief abstract of the statement of the condition of the merchandising companies and of the development companies which is being prepared by Marwick, Mitchell & Co., of New York, who have been engaged to make a complete audit and investigation of the books of the several corporations for the benefit of stockholders and creditors.

This abstract is considered sufficiently favorable to allay the fears of those who have been alarmed by the flood of rumors which has cropped out following the resignation as president and directing factor, of Leonard R. Steel, resulting from a nervous breakdown due to overwork.

NEW BOARD OF CONTROL.

The management of the L. R. Steel enterprises is now under the direction of a board of control of which Walter M. Wilkins, former secretary and general counsel of the company, is chairman. Every effort is being made by the new board of control to reduce the heavy overhead expenses and to place the company on a firm business basis as rapidly as possible. It is the intention of the new officers and members of the board of control to develop properties already owned and operated by the various enterprises, rather than continually to branch out into new and untried fields of activity.

In 1922, the second year of operation, the L. R. Steel enterprises did a gross merchandising business of $9,926,291. The several merchandising companies are now operating on a profit-producing basis and these companies have now arrived at a point where many economies, not possible during the period of organization and rapid expansion, can be effected.

The net surplus of the merchandising companies, according to the accountant's abstract, is $686,954. This figure, however, does not include prepaid expenses, furniture, fixtures and improvements which should bring the net surplus well up over the $2,500,000 mark.

NET WORTH FOUR MILLION.

The abstract statement of the Steel Realty Development Co. shows that the original cost of the properties was $4,314,751.58, to which have been added improvements and payments during 1921 and 1922 sufficient to bring the total up to $5,678,005.80. Deducting mortgages payable and deferred payments of $2,265,557.16, the net equity is given as $3,402,448.73, making the total net worth of the two major companies of the Steel enterprises close to $4,000,000.

The members of the new board of control are all minority stockholders. They have been chosen so that the interest of both holders and creditors will be fully protected. Careful plans are being prepared for the rehabilitation of the company.

Four Millions in New Contracts in Week

Practically $4,000,000 worth of new construction contracts were awarded throughout New England during the week ending February 13, according to statistics compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company. The exact figures were $3,900,000, as compared with $1,882,100 for the corresponding week in 1922, and $3,454,000 in 1916, the best previous week.

The figures follow:

ARREST ENDS 6,000 MILE CHASE IN $300,000 GEM ROBBERY

HOLD ACTOR AS LEADER OF GANG

Suspects Accused of Staging Theft at a New Year Party in New York

By International News Service

Other arrests are expected to follow the capture in Albany of Mathew Biddulph, alleged to be the "Mr. Marshall" who engineered the theft of $300,000 in jewels from Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo at a new year's party here.

Other identifications of Biddulph are expected to be made by guests of the party as soon as Biddulph and his companion are brought here.

LED 6,000-MILE CHASE.

Mrs. Schoellkopf picked out his picture in the Rogues' Gallery here, starting a 6,000-mile chase which led from New York to the Pacific Coast, into Canada and back to New York State, ending with the arrest by Detective Joe Daly at Albany last night.

Frank Barrett Carman, at whose apartment the New Year's party was given, made positive identification of Biddulph's photograph as the man who rented an apartment under him and planned the robbery.

Police records give Biddulph a host of aliases, including Marshal and Harrison. He told Detective Daly he was John F. Derby, No. 75 Lancaster street, Albany, an actor. With him was a man who said he was George F. Daly.

APPEARED IN THE MOVIES.

Police said he is a close friend of Charles Curtis of Hoboken, N. J., held by police in their investigation of a $50,000 jewel robbery at the home of Mrs. Lillian Meyers in New York.

Biddulph's career as an actor was confined to the movies, police state, and in those to one appearance.

Oddly enough, the film in which he appeared was entitled "Wanted at Headquarters."

CANTON AROUSED BY $10,000 FIRE

The family of Antonio Pesaturo was driven to the street in below zero temperature, and the town of Canton was aroused by a fire today that destroyed a three-and-a-half-story wooden building on Washington street. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

Aid was summoned from Sharon and Ponkapoag. Pesaturo, owner of the building, operated a fruit store on the first floor and had living quarters upstairs.

In the cellar was a quantity of tires and oil. The flames, fed on the oil, roared up through the structure, giving Mr. and Mrs. Pesaturo and their three children scant time to reach the street. They were cared for by neighbors.

KLAN THREATS ONLY "HOT AIR," SAYS CHIEF

Springfield, O., Feb. 17.—Police Chief R. E. O'Brien today branded reports that he had received threatening letters in connection with the Ku Klux Klan case here as absolutely false. Asked if he had received the letters, he declared that published reports of anonymous letters sent to him were all "hot air," and that the only letters he received at police headquarters were commendatory of his action in raiding Klan headquarters here Wednesday night.

loaned four hundred million francs to Poland to be spent on the Polish army, keeping it up.

THE FRENCH nightmare is a combined Germany and Russia marching westward. No sign of it yet, but it's well to be prepared. Poland is well located to worry Russia or Germany, also well situated, as history proves, to be divided by them.

The Allies have just given the important part of Memel on the Baltic Sea into the sovereignty of Lithuania, with the right of Poland to go in and out. That will make more Polish soldiers necessary. Poles and Lithuanians are very patriotic and fight.

Nuptials of Miss "Sue" Ward to Draw Society Today, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

TODAY'S social excitement is, of course, the all-important ceremonial which will transform Miss "Sue" Wood into Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Jr.

The nuptial event is scheduled for 12:30 p. m. at Emmanuel Church, where a large and distinguished corps of ushers— several from New York and Philadelphia—will show the fashionables to their seats.

Mrs. Eugene B. Gorman will be her sister's only attendant, while John S. Amory will attend his brother as best man. The groom, who has a notable list of club holdings, is a Harvard '16 man, very popular with his coterie, and having a splendid overseas record to his credit.

The bride—whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan Wood, have a home in Dayton, Ohio, and a country place at Ipswich on the North Shore—is wearing white satin and a beautiful veil of rarest lace, a coronet covering her dark hair.

BISHOP WILLIAM LAWRENCE, who's now in Bermuda, spent some weeks in New York at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lansing P. Reed, before sailing for Bermuda.

ALFRED L. RIPLEY has arrived at St. Augustine, Fla., where he has joined Alvah Crocker at the Hotel Ponce de Leon. Mr. Crocker served as best man for Augustus Gibson Paine of New York at the latter's wedding to Miss Francisca Machado Warren of Cambridge. The marriage was solemnized about a fortnight ago at the St. John's Chapel in Cambridge, following which Mr. and Mrs. Paine sailed for a two months' honeymoon in Italy.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD J. COOLIDGE of Berkeley street and the North Shore—leaders in their smart coterie—are sailing for a two or three months' trip abroad, probably some time next month.

Miss Mary Post, one of the most attractive of this year's Junior "Leaguers"—whose gown was rich green—had a small pink rose in her auburn hair. Sally Cabot, a fellow-bud, had a white flower on either side of her blonde hair. Her dress, by the way, was one of the quickest to catch the eye. It was a demure looking affair of grey, with bands of white crossing over the shoulders.

With her dark hair and brilliant coloring, pretty Margery Richardson was very easy to look upon in a gown of oyster white satin, made in the long-waisted style. In silvery white brocade was popular Betty Thorndike, bud daughter of the Alden A. Thorndikes, who's had a number of gay parties given in her honor.

Miss Frances Weed—more familiarly known as "Weedie"—wore blue and silver brocade, with insertions of blue chiffon at the sides. Also in blue and silver brocade was blonde-haired Louise Fessenden.

Miss Gertrue Russell chose a striking gown of silver brocade, its long, flare skirt of uneven hem line. Miss Nell White's gown was a smart affair of Nile green velvet, with long draperies of green lace falling below the hem.

Miss Harriet Royce — who's still being congratulated upon her clever impersonation of a heart-breaking "collar man" in the recent Animated Advertising Adventure—wore a gay cerise shawl over her white dress.

Last night's affair marked the close for the season of the Junior supper dances, which have proved no end popular among the buds and their cavaliers, as well as for the girls who have been out a year or more, and some of the "younger-marrieds."

FALLEN WIRE TIES UP 'L' TRAFFIC

Traffic between East Boston and the city proper was tied up for more than one hour today when a feed wire over the inbound track of the "L" broke in front of Police Station 7, Meridian street.

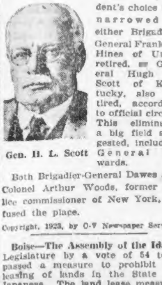
Thousands of persons seeking to reach employment in Boston were forced to go through Charlestown and Chelsea or by the ferrys. These were crowded to capacity and the throng outside the ferry stations was so great that lines stretched back two and three blocks.

The break happened at 6:40. It was not repaired until 7:50. The delay was due to the fact the repair men had to go from Boston by way of Charlestown.

HINES OR SCOTT TO HEAD VETS' BUREAU

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

Washington, Feb. 17.—President Harding will announce a successor to Colonel Charles R. Forbes as head of the United States Veterans' Bureau next week.



Gen. H. L. Scott

The President's choice has narrowed to either Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines of Utah, retired, or General Hugh L. Scott of Kentucky, also retired, according to official circles. This eliminates a big field suggested, including General Edwards.

Both Brigadier-General Dawes and Colonel Arthur Woods, former police commissioner of New York, refused the place.

FIND FREEZING CREW OF LOST SHIP ON ISLAND

By the Associated Press.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 17.—The steamship Tuscan Prince, for which search had been made since she flashed two radio S. O. S. messages Thursday, was found today a total wreck on a rocky island near Village Point, Vancouver Island, B. C.

Her crew of forty-three, suffering severely from exposure, were huddled on the rock at the bow of the ship.

The wreck was found by the United States Coast Guard cutter Snohomish, after a search of more than twenty-four hours.

Fourteen of the crew were taken aboard the cutter and the others are to be picked up tomorrow. The Snohomish wirelessed that returning tomorrow after completing rescue of the crew of the Tuscan Prince, she would pick up the crew of the steamship Santa Rita.

The Santa Rita men, said to be short of food, have been camped on Carmanah Point, Vancouver Island, since the ship hit a rock while attempting to go to the aid of the steamer Nika.

"HI-Y" CLUB PICKS OFFICERS FOR 1923

The second City Wide Olde Boys' Conference, in progress at the First Baptist Church in Boston, has elected as president for 1923 Charles Hunt, representing the Boston Latin "Hi-Y" Club. Other officers are: Vice-president, William Judge, representing St. Stephens' Boys Club of Boston; secretary, Kenneth Anthony, Brighton Congregational Club, and Roger Ruggles, representing the Dorchester "Hi-Y" Club.

Musician Colby Buried

DEVICE OFFERS WAY TO LOCK UP RADIO SET

A method of locking a radio receiver against the inquiring fingers of little brother is described by W. J. Baker of Minot street, Dorchester, in the free tube contest.

Mount any ordinary drawer lock in back of your panel with the keyhole exposed outside. Mount a piece of spring brass or copper, bent to form an angle near the lock, so that when the bolt of the lock is out it makes a tight contact with the piece of brass or copper.

One side of the A battery is then connected with the lock, and the piece of brass with one side of the filament, so that when the lock is open, the A battery circuit is open. Turn the key in the lock, and the A battery circuit is closed, and the set may be used.

Here's another good wrinkle, by M. M. Rabinowitz of Rawson road, Brookline:

"When connecting my B battery to the plate, I find that the tube works best with 16½ volts on the plate. Sometimes it requires 18½ (never more). Therefore there are always one or more cells of which the 22½ volt battery is composed, unused. If the two highest binding posts of the B battery are connected to the filament, an A battery is unnecessary.

"The plate and the filament voltages do not have anything to do with their respective currents. The two highest binding posts equal 1½ volts.

"This wrinkle ought to be especially valuable to those fans who own portable sets. It also cuts down the expense of an A battery and utilizes the otherwise wasted portions of the B battery."

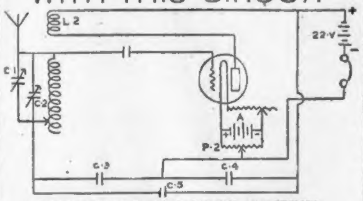
REMARKABLE RESULTS WITH THIS CIRCUIT



DESIGNED BY NEW YORK AMATEUR

A new non-critical Flewelling circuit, with which a New York amateur has had remarkable results. L1, 80 turns on a three-inch tube tapped at every ten turns. L2, 100 turns on a three-inch tube. C1, .0005 variable condenser. C2, three-plate vernier condenser. C3, C4, C5, fixed condensers of .006 mfd. each. R1, 6 ohm rheostat. R2, 240 ohm potentiometer. Tube is soft and no ground is used. This circuit is very stable.

ALIENISTS SAY MRS. RAIZEN WAS INSANE

New York, Feb. 17.—Belief that Mrs. Lillian S. Raizen was incurably insane when she shot Dr. Abraham Glickstein was expressed by two alienists testifying today for the defence at the woman's trial on a charge of murder.

Dr. Edward E. Hicks of Brooklyn, who said that although Mrs. Raizen probably knew what she was doing when she fired the shot, she did not know it was wrong, was asked in cross-examination if she now was insane.

"Yes, and she is likely to commit a similar act in the future," he replied.

Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim of Central Valley, N. Y., declared that the defendant was suffering from a delusional depression, believing that the physician, whom she charged with betraying her, had possession of her soul and the only way to recover it was to kill him.

AGREE TO LIMIT SHIP SUBSIDY PAYMENTS

Washington, Feb. 17 (By International News Service).—Drastic revision of the Harding-Lasker Ship Subsidy bill was agreed upon today by administration leaders. Two amendments to limit subsidies were prepared by Senator Jones, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee.

The amendments are:

1—Elimination of all passenger liners from the subsidy benefits by reducing the speed limit of beneficiary vessels from twenty-three to nineteen knots an hour.

2—Prohibition of financial aid to all privately owned shipping until 1,500,000 gross tons of government owned ships are sold.

The first amendment would eliminate the fast exclusive passenger ships from government aid, but would also reduce the number of cargo-pasenger ships which would benefit. The subsidy, in effect would apply only to those vessels solely engaged in cargo shipping or that carry cargo as a bulk of their business.

The second amendment would act as a stimulant to the sale of the 6,000,000 gross tons of Shipping Board vessels, most of which are tied up at docks along the nation's coast line. It would prohibit the extension of any aid to private shipping until half of "serviceable" government ships are sold.

CHELSEA SEALER NABS "SHORT" COAL DEALER

Philip Green, coal dealer, No. 115 Crescent avenue, Chelsea, won't give any more lifts to city officials. Green was delivering "6020 pounds" to Mrs. Mary Kaplan of Poplar street, and gave City Sealer of Weights and Measures Kriteman a ride. They passed the city yards and Kriteman ordered a trip to the scales. The truck-load was 220 pounds short and Green, pleading guilty, today paid a fine of $50. Kriteman also reported he later found Green's own scales 240 pounds "fast."

WYNN CRIES ALOUD FOR CLEAN SHOWS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

ABOUT all you could remember, as you backed out of Ed Wynn's dressing room at the Colonial and bumped into a resplendent garden of girlish rosebuds in silken tights, was the ease and simplicity with which this funniest man on the stage could take a first class interview on the run. No interview in fifteen years of patient toil, both back of the footlights and in snug hotel quarters, was ever accompanied by so much exercise. Viewing it from the sidelines Walter Camp would have proclaimed it the success of the season—a triumph of physical culture over art. Inspecting the event as one of the perspiring principals you were struck with the beauty of your own foot work—it simply had to be good to hold its own with the pace set by Mr. Winn. Frankly, his was superb.

CHASING WYNN IS HAZARDOUS JOB.

"Let's Have a Clean Stage," Says Ed Wynn.

THE thing just happened by accident, anyway, and if the ceremony did bear something of a resemblance to an indoor track meet it was only because Mr. Wynn had tarried too long over that last sip of coffee with his dinner—possibly it was a bit of camembert that held him back. In any event curtain time was threatening and Mr. Wynn was plainly late on the job. Would you be good enough to join him in his dressing room? And right there you lost him. Your memory will always hold a picture of the movement from Tom Lothian's office to the spot back stage where you expected to find a nice safe interview. Class will tell, and Wynn beat you to the stage by yards, and disappeared. You fumbled at what you thought was his dressing room door, but a woman's shrill scream called attention to your faulty direction, and you remained on the safe side of the threshold and waited for a friendly property man to restore order. Finally you arrive at the right place, a little groggy but willing to stick. "Let's get started," you beg, anxiously, as your subject sheds a layer of clothes.

"Oh! yes," he was saying. "you want an interview? Well, you sit right here and listen. You don't even have to ask a question. If there is any one thing I do well, besides writing monologues, it is giving interviews. Funny, but I can write anything for myself and know it is going to be a sure fire hit with an audience, but I can't write a line for somebody else. That's where I made my mistake when I undertook to write this show. When I got into it I found that I wasn't writing anything for the other people in the cast, and when I tried to correct the mistake I discovered I couldn't write dialogue at all. The result puts me on the stage and keeps me there most of the time. I'll never do it again—it's not reasonable to expect a comedian to work as long as I am doing in 'The Perfect Fool,' but it's my own fault. Excuse me, please, there's the curtain."

HE NEVER USED ANOTHER MAN'S WORK.

And the first step in what eventually became a Marathon was taken because you were bold enough to follow on behind. In ten minutes you were at his heels again as he made high speed for the dressing room and a complete change. He was also honest about one thing—you didn't have to ask questions.

"IN my entire career as an entertainer I have never used another man's work. I have always written my own stuff; back in the old vaudeville days I did it; when I was with the Follies in 1914 and 1916 I was my own author, and since I have been producing my own revues with Mr. Whitney I have followed on—never have I spoken a word on the stage that was not my own. I suppose I have memorized more jokes than any comedian of the present day, and one of the easiest things I do is turn them into a monologue, but, gosh darn it, I can't write dialogue. How do you account for that? Don't try to explain, because there isn't any answer. A man has certain gifts, but they are limited, and he has no business trying to do something beyond his gifts. Gosh, how I would like to be able to write snappy dialogue."

BY this time he started another journey from the dressing room to the stage, in new make-up and, of course, with a different hat. Mr. Wynn's special talent in costuming appears to run into hats. You trailed him, breathless, to the first entrance and while recovering composure and getting under the feet of madly rushing clearers, soubrettes and just plain ladies of the chorus, you marvelled at the physical energy of the man. Another sprint and you're back in the dressing room.

HERE'S A CALL FOR CLEAN SHOWS.

Mr. Wynn Mixes Sprinting With His Work.

"THERE is one thing about a Wynn show," he explained between adjustments, "it is absolutely clean. I hope you have noticed that—I hope everybody noticed it. Anyone can make a show look as if it had just been sent back from the laundry, but I want mine to sound that way to the human ear. A little moral soap and water is a good thing to have on hand. I have always had a strong conviction that dirt should be kept away from the stage and that big musical shows can be made as clean as anything else. Of course, I wouldn't call names, but most of the big and always popular musical revues are founded on questionable comedy and a magnificent display of half dressed women. I was told that a clean revue couldn't be put over successfully, but I was so sure of my ground and so strong in my faith that the public at heart is clean minded, that I finally persuaded my advisers that I might be right. In the seasons that I have been directing and acting in my own shows we have equalled in gross weekly business any of the big organizations that make their appeal to the coarser senses. They may be artistic in detail, but you will notice a worried look in the eye of the public censor while they are in town. If I could lay my hand in every musical revue sent out from Broadway your amiable Mr. Casey of City Hall wouldn't have any further anxiety about the Boston theatres. Possibly he wouldn't even have a job."

Now, you're off again on the fourth lap—fifteen yards in three seconds flat. If you happen to trip over an eighteen-year-old dancer, just put it down as an embarrassing misfortune and forget the attending thrill.

LITTLE INSIDE BOOST FOR POLLOCK.

"SOMEBODY has told me," remarked Mr. Wynn, pouring himself into a pair of badly fitting red tights. "that Channing Pollock has suggested the possibility of giving a special matinee of his play, 'The Fool,' with members of 'The Perfect Fool' as guests—something of a get-together party of all the theatrical 'fools' in one performance. The plan should be commended because I am trying to make myself believe that we are just as wholesome in our rollicking, riotous, musical way as Mr. Pollock's play is in a dramatic sense, and those of us who put our faith in the cleaner things of the theatre should walk hand in hand and fight for our ideals. Mr. Pollock is doing his share and I am more than willing to make my own contribution—it is a movement within the theatre that is well worth any decent man's time and faithful effort."

RIGHT there is where you backed out of Mr. Wynn's dressing room into that smiling swarm of feminine loveliness. Let it be spoken in soft words that nothing can make you forget the main theme of an interview like an exit that carries you through so much that is worth looking at—especially when you have so little time to look.

Author Jumps From One Cent to $5 a Word

By CARLYLE MOORE,
Author of "Listening In."

My first attempt at short story writing I took to Bob Davis, magazine editor. He picked it to pieces and then paid me a cent a word for it. The next story he did not accept, but advised me to make a play out of it. The result was "Stop Thief," the royalties on which paid me at the rate of $5 a word. Later, when "Listening In" had its Broadway success, I looked up Davis and found that he was not impressed with my success as a playright.

When I explained the difference per word between a story and a play, he exclaimed: "You remind me of the fish that wanted advice about getting back in the water. My advice is to get back in the water or dry up."

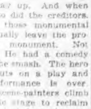
Make Atmosphere With Pipes and Cigars

"Don't smoke on this set!"

Those who have visited motion picture studios during the making of pictures have seen a sign like this and they have heard the director and his assistant cry with dismay when smoke percolated into the atmosphere before the camera. But Edwin Carewe, who directed "Mighty Lak' a Rose," which will be shown at Gordon's Olympia on Monday, changed all that while they were making the underworld dance hall scenes in this picture.

As he got all ready to shoot a big scene, the actors and actresses remembering that they were taught not to smoke because it interfered with camera work, stopped puffing. "What's the matter with the smoke?" cried Carewe. "This is an underworld dance hall. Did you ever see one? Smoke, everybody; smoke hard." And in a few minutes he had the atmosphere.

Makes Success Out of Colossal Failure



George Jessell

All the "success" cook books name "failure" as one of the essential ingredients. The process varies with the individual, but the simple formula is success out of failure. And there is no better illustration of it than George Jessell, whose "Troubles of 1922" is at the Majestic next week.

After he had been singing and doing monologues on the stage for a few years, young Jessell grew ambitious and decided to produce a play. He borrowed money from his mother and the curtain went up. But it didn't stay up. And when it came down, so did the creditors. It was one of those monumental failures that usually leave the producer under a monument. Not George Jessell. He had a comedy written around the smash. The hero of his sketch puts on a play and before the performance is over costumers and scene-painters climb up on the mimic stage to reclaim their property. And from the proceeds of this sketch, the young producer was able to pay his debts.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN

Who's Who and What's What Among the Shows That Are Staying Over From Week to Week.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

"The Fool" at the Selywn. (Second week.) Drama of applied Christianity made into good entertainment by skilled acting and the intelligent employment of theatrical devices.

• • •

"Blossom Time" at the Boston Opera House. (Second week.) Delightful opera based on the life of Franz Schubert, with the melodies of the great composer utilized for the score. The last week.

• • •

"Just Married" at the Plymouth. (Sixth week.)—Lynne Overman featured in an artistic jag and Vivian Martin assisting at the ceremonies in her own girlish way. Rollicking farce.

• • •

"Lightnin'" at the Holl's. (Ninth week.) Sweet scented rural comedy that keeps right close to the job of playing to enormous business. It supplies smiles and tears in alternate order.

• • •

Ed Wynn in "The Perfect Fool" at the Colonial. (Third week.) Nearest thing to one-man entertainment ever seen in a big musical show. Mr. Wynn in the funniest role of his life.

• • •

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Arlington. (Second week.) Time worn, but still in the ring. Famous old play made modern by up-to-date amplifications and a jazz orchestra. The last week.

• • •

"The Town That Forgot God" at Tremont Temple. (Third week.) A William Fox production of many thrills and extraordinary dramatic interest. Enlivened by a sensational flood scene. The last week.

Prima Donna Haunted Baseball Scoreboard

Edith Thayer

From nonentity to stardom in a night—that is the enviable record of Edith Thayer, the diminutive prima donna in "Blossom Time," now at the Boston Opera House. Miss Thayer is the tiniest person imaginable. She stands four feet eleven—four feet nine and a half without heels—and weighs ninety-eight pounds and a half, though, as she says: "I've gained a little bit, really. I'm not going to tell about that, however." Miss Thayer is an amazing bundle of winsomeness—a perfect testimony to the truth of the old saying that "good things always come in small packages." She has a magnetism, a piquancy, a wealth of pretty expression all out of proportion to her size. Before you have seen her half a dozen minutes she will tell you how she stood out in front of the newspaper scoreboard an hour and a half one time to find whether her favorite Boston Braves were winning the World Series. Then it will develop that her home is near Boston, and that the Braves are her home team.

Study Mankind If You Would Be Good Writer

By CHANNING POLLOCK,
Author of "The Fool."

The most important training for a writer is living. Living broadly and fully, and with his eyes open. Every week I get dozens of letters from men and women who want to write and want to know what course to pursue. An author's value depends upon what he has seen, and heard, and digested. No one ever succeeded in literature whose personal experience had been narrow or restricted.

My advice to the prospective novelist or dramatist is Pope's, "the proper study of mankind is man." Get to know people. Get to know them well. All kinds of people. My latest play, "The Fool," reflects long intimacies with clergymen, spies, laboring men, tramps, crooks, society women, business men—every kind of person under all kinds of circumstances. Everything is grist in the mill of the writer.

DRAMATIC FARE FOR THE COMING WEEK

LIONEL ATWILL.
He Comes to the Tremont in "The Comedian."

LIFE in the theatre is just one mystery play after another. "The Bat" moves out of the Wilbur tonight, and on Monday "Listening In" will take the stage with its own brand of thrills, crime and mystery. Ernest Glendinning is the featured player of this high-tension drama. Another shift on the local diagram for the new week will bring Lionel Atwill to the Tremont in David Belasco's production of Sacha Guitry's "The Comedian." Further up Tremont street, at the Shubert, a new musical comedy will put in its bid for public favor. This is "Elsie," a spirited entertainment created by the men who wrote "Shuffle Along." The new bill for the St. James will be "Up the Ladder," a modern play by Owen Davis that has never been presented in Boston. For lighter form of entertainment there will be "Step On It," at Waldron's Casino, and "Broadway Brevities," at the Gayety.

WILBUR—"Listening In," the mystery comedy which comes to the Wilbur Theatre Monday night next direct from its run at the Bijou Theatre, New York, has a real Boston favorite in the leading role, for Ernest Glendinning, the hero of the play, is well known here. Dodson Mitchell and Frank Andrews, well known in Boston, are also in the cast.

SHUBERT — A new musical comedy, said to be clever, brilliant and snappy, is to be the offering at the Shubert Theatre next week. It is entitled "Elsie." The writers of the music and the lyrics are Sissle and Blake, to whom the fame and charm of "Shuffle Along" is due. Heading the cast is Ada Meade, a comedienne of rare talents, followed by Maud Turner Gordon, Irma Marwick, Vinton Freedley and Stanley Ridges.

MAJESTIC — George Jessel's "Troubles of 1922," a musical comedy revue, will be seen at the Majestic Theatre as the feature of Shubert vaudeville the coming week. The cast of principals is headed by George Jessel, Fay and Florence Courtney, who would grace any production. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment has the brisk informality that characterizes all musical comedies. The Courtney Sisters are the headliners.

TREMONT—Lionel Atwill, under the direction of David Belasco, will begin Monday night at the Tremont Theatre, a two-weeks' engagement, presenting "The Comedian," a comedy of temperaments by Sacha Guitry. During the first week of the engagement the matinee performances will be given on Washington's Birthday (Thursday) and Saturday.

KEITH'S—The Duncan Sisters head the bill at Keith's for the coming week, coming direct from their second successful tour of England. "Fifty Miles from Broadway," in three scenes and a cast of eleven players, is another feature. Madeline Collins, from the Covent Garden, London; Douglas Leavitt and Ruth May Lockwood; Barclay and Chain, two pages from the book of fun; Moore and Freed; Carleton and Bellew; Burns Brothers, and the Rooneys complete the bill.

PARK—Hall Caine's "The Christian" will be the attraction at the Park Theatre beginning Monday night and continuing twice daily thereafter. The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation employed their utmost resources that justice might be done to the subject. In the cast will be seen Richard Dix, Mae Busch, Gareth Hughes, Phyllis Haver and Mahlon Hamilton.

A Scene from "THE CHRISTIAN" PARK

A Scene from "THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD" TREMONT TEMPLE

A Scene from "JAZZMANIA" ORPHEUM

MARION DAVIES in "ADAM and EVA" LOEW'S STATE

OLYMPIA—"Mighty Lak' a Rose," Edwin Carewe's latest First National attraction, will be given its first Boston showing at Gordon's Olympia beginning Monday. This symphony of life in high and low places serves to introduce as a full fledged motion picture star, Dorothy Mackaill. Five vaudeville acts and the usual film and musical features will also be on the program.

LOEW'S STATE—Marion Davies and Mary Miles Minter, two of the most popular luminaries of the silent art, head the bill for the coming week at Loew's State Theatre. Miss Davies appears in a picturization of "Adam and Eve," the stage success which won distinction in every metropolitan city of the country. Mary Miles Minter will be seen in "Drums of Fate."

ORPHEUM—Mae Murray in "Jazzmania," one of the best of the Metro releases for the current season with six vaudeville acts, comprises the program for the coming week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. In "Jazzmania" Miss Murray essays the role of an American girl in Central America, who is confronted with a series of romantic adventures.

ST. JAMES—At the St. James this week the Boston Stock Company will be seen in a play new to Boston, "Up the Ladder," from the pen of Owen Davis. It has to do with two young Americans, meeting in the office where they both work, marrying and then starting together the long climb up. Miss Bushnell and Mr. Gilbert will share the leading roles and Lucille Adams will be seen in what is termed as the "greatest flapper role ever written."

WASHINGTON—The program for re-opening of the Washington Theatre on Monday will be headed by Mary Pickford in "Tess of the Storm Country, with Larry Semon in "No Wedding Bells" and Max Linder in "The Three Must-Get-Their's as additional features. The bill will be changed on Thursday, bringing out Tom Mix in "Romance Land" and Alice Brady in "Missing Millions."

SOMERVILLE — "Sag Harbor," the greatest of all rural plays, which won renown and served as a starring vehicle for its distinguished author and actor, James A. Herne, will be the new attraction at the Somerville Theatre. "Sag Harbor" will draw upon every member of the company who will appear in quaint rural roles.

CASINO—"Step On It" comes to Waldron's Casino next week. This musical attraction features George Niblo, tramp comedian, and Helen Spencer, comedienne, in a two-act burletta, "The Isle of Wha Wha." Thrilling moving pictures and clever vaudeville round out the three-in-one continuous program. Niblo and Spencer head a company of two score entertainers.

GAYETY—"Broadway Brevities" is booked at the Gayety Theatre next week with the star role taken by Lena Daley, the sprightly dancer and gifted singer, who is heralded as the best-dressed girl on the burlesque stage today.

The production is rich in pretty girls and elaborate display of fashion.

BOSTON—Louise Lovely, motion picture star, is to appear in person at the Boston Theatre next week. She has a novelty motion picture production act in which local young men and women will play the various roles. Betty Blythe in "The Darling of the Rich" is the feature picture.

MODERN AND BEACON—The bill at the Modern and Beacon Theatres next week consists of Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper," and "The Kingdom Within." A Larry Semon comedy, "No Wedding Bells," will also be shown.

Brain Is Master, Not Slave to Emotion

By LIONEL ATWILL,
With David Belasco's "The Comedian."

How far an actor should forget himself in a character is a very favorite topic of discussion. There are numerous actors and actresses who, at the very height of their emotions, when the tears may be streaming down their faces or a wild torrent of words pouring forth from their lips, are thoroughly conscious of how far they can or should go and the effect they are having on their audience. They hold the reins of their emotions as a good horseman does his mount.

It is almost as exhausting as the real thing, because the presentation of the emotion is real, but the brain is the master and not just the slave of the passion depicted.

MAE BUSCH HAD TO BE COAXED

Mae Busch

Only a little more than a week before Mae Busch had finished playing a rather small part in the film version of Peter B. Kyne's story, "Brothers Under the Skin," the producers were looking for a Gloria Quayle for "The Christian," coming to the Park Theatre next week, for which Richard Dix had been cast as the John Storm. Among at least a score of others Miss Busch took the test — though with no eagerness, it may be said.

"Curiously enough," Miss Busch admitted, "I wasn't terribly interested at first in playing Gloria. Charlie Chaplin had been talking to me about playing with him in a big picture he is planning, and I was rather sold on the idea. But when everybody began talking about the possibilities of the role and, not of least importance, going to England to make it, I did what any other woman would have done under the circumstances, changed my mind. I suddenly wanted to play Gloria very much indeed."

Miss Busch was born in Australia, where her father was director of the Symphony Orchestra at Melbourne and her mother a singer in grand opera.

GALLI-CURCI CONCERT

In joining the Metropolitan Opera Company last season, Galli-Curci accomplished the unusual feat of becoming a featured star of both America's great opera organizations—the Metropolitan and Chicago companies. Ten years ago, in Rome, the young Italian singer was thrilled to sign a three-year contract for coloratura roles in the Constanzi Theatre. Two weeks from tomorrow she sings her last concert in Boston this season at the Boston Opera House.

MME. WALSKA WILL SING HERE

Ganna Walksa

A program of high musical interest will be given by Madame Ganna Walska at her Boston debut, which will take place in Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon, February 25. The Polish beauty, having lately arrived in America with her husband, Harold F. McCormick, is following her recent success in Paris by a tour of this country in which she is to be assisted by Max Kaplick, baritone, who was formerly a conspicuous member of the Boston Opera Company.

STEINERT CONCERT

For his final concert in the Steinert series at Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon, Mr. Steinert has selected two of the outstanding figures in the French musical world, Jacques Thibaud, whose art has raised him to the front ranks of violinists, and Alfred Cortot, who in a remarkably short time has been proclaimed as one of the most consummate masters of the keyboard, will play a program which will gladden the hearts of their admirers.

CORTOT, SOLOIST

At the next regular pair of Boston Symphony concerts, which will be given in Symphony Hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, Alfred Cortot, a French pianist, will appear as soloist. He will play with the orchestra the fourth pianoforte concerto of Saint-Saens.

BRARD WILL PLAY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its third concert of the extra Monday evening series on Monday night, with Magdeleine Brard, a young French pianist, appearing as soloist. Pierre Monteux will conduct as the principal number on the program the mighty "Eroica" Symphony No. 3 by Beethoven, and will close the concert with Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody.

Washington Theatre Will Reopen Monday

Boston's group of picture theatres will have what might be called a near addition on Monday, for the Washington, closed for about six weeks for repairs and renovations, will be reopened.

The interior of the theatre has been entirely redecorated and former patrons who attend the opening will find themselves in one of the most attractive of the smaller theatres of Greater Boston. The program policy will be continuous, with changes in the picture bills on Monday and Thursday.

Among the changes in the Washington is the addition of a rest room for women patrons. The opening bill will show Mary Pickford in "Tess of the Storm Country," Larry Semon in "No Wedding Bells" and Max Linder in "The Three-Must-Get-Theirs."

Duncan Sisters Are Now in Long Skirts

The Duncans in skirts! Regular long ones, too! Broadway scarcely knew them. Five years ago, two little tow heads from sunny California, dressed in funny little gingham rompers, short socks which displayed pink, dimpled knees, stormed the theatrical centre of the universe.

This year they decided to test Broadway and see whether it was the Duncan Sisters themselves whom she favored or the two children whom they impersonated. They appeared in long skirts, all grown up, and with a brand new repertoire! The effect was startling. After her first astonishment, Broadway recognized the Duncans and welcomed them enthusiastically.

Stranger Thought Niblo Was Ex-Bartender

"They say that an actor can be told off-stage because he betrays his profession in his face, in his mannerisms, his tone of voice and even in his words. But I guess I must be the great exception to the general rule because I have been taken for everything except an actor—everything from a life insurance solicitor to a baseball umpire. Why is it?" So speaks George Niblo, who is with "Step On It" at Waldron's Casino next week.

"While I was waiting in a railroad station I suggested for a joke to one of the company that he ask two strangers to guess my occupation. He did so. One stranger gazed said: 'Huh, he looks like a retired bar-tender to me.'"

Steps From Dancing Girl to the Screen

"If you have a weakness for anything, you'll get it if you want it badly enough," says Mae Murray, star of "Jazzmania," which will be shown at Loew's Orpheum next week. "That's been my motto, and to it I attribute my stage success. In my own case, I wanted to be a dramatic actress. I could dance well—I was in Ziegfeld's Follies for several years—but I never had an opportunity to do really emotional acting. So I capitalized my dancing ability, and it brought me to the place I wanted to reach finally. I still dance, as you know from my pictures, but I have realized my ambition to portray real people dramatically. In other words, my entering motion pictures has given me everything I desire, with no artistic sacrifice."

REPORT 'SONNY' WHITNEY WEDS SECRETLY

MARIE NORTON

"SONNY" WHITNEY

New York, Feb. 17.—Marie Norton is now Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney. There was a secret wedding in France.

Marie, a daughter of the Sheridan S. Nortons, of this city and Westbury, L. I., and one of the prettiest and most popular members of the younger set, went abroad several months ago.

The scion of the Vanderbilt and Whitney families has been in Paris since early last Autumn. If my memory serves me aright, he went abroad with his mother, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and his sisters, Mrs. Roderick Tower and Barbara Whitney, just prior to the hearing of the Evan Burrows Fontaine suit—which ended in a complete victory for the Whitney family.

Miss Fontaine instituted her suit after reading, about a year ago, that the Nortons were planning to announce Marie's engagement to the dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt's grandson, and owing to the suit, a formal announcement of the betrothal was never made. In fact, both the Whitneys and the Nortons denied that any engagement existed.

SUSPECT HELD AS BLACK HAND SLAYER DIES

The White Plague vs. the Black Hand.

Tony Blanco is dead.

He died of tuberculosis today at the City Hospital, to which he was removed a week ago from the Charles Street Jail.

Ever since Tony was arrested for complicity in the Blackhand murder of Joseph Simboli, his attorney, John W. Connelley, and friends, have persisted that he was the victim of a frameup, and entirely innocent of any complicity in the killing of Simboli. Connelly points to the fact that Blanco was discharged on his arraignment in East Boston Court when he was first arrested.

For weeks Connelly says he waged a fight to get Blanco out of the Charles Street Jail.

"He was suffering from tuberculosis when he was sent to the jail. It was cold there and keeping him there was just the same as sentencing him to death for a crime he had no connection with. I put up a stiff fight to get him out of jail and into a hospital.

"Two weeks ago I succeeded in getting an order for his removal to the City Hospital. But even then there was delay, and it wasn't until a week ago that Tony was taken out of Charles street to the hospital.

"It was too late. He didn't have a chance. This is the sort of case that makes men wonder if the system of justice and law hereabouts isn't a complete mockery.

"The red tape and indifference of the law killed Tony Blanco, an innocent man. And now there's Mrs. Blanco and her six children—freezing and starving to death because Tony's support was taken away from them.

"I wonder if the law which took the husband and father away from this little family will help them now that they are destitute. I wonder if the law will even make amends to the extent of giving Tony a decent burial."

TRAMP SINKS 7 COAL BARGES; 1 LIFE LOST

New York, Feb. 17.—The outward bound tramp freighter Allamaha ran down a string of eight coal-laden barges off the Statue of Liberty today, sinking seven of them and causing the death by exposure of one of eight bargemen who were thrown into the icy water. Each of the sunken barges carried 900 tons of coal.

Defeated Candidate Runs

Denis F. Bowen, U. S. N. retired, one of the defeated candidates for selectmen at Brookline's Thursday caucus, said today he would take out nomination papers for election March 6. Five candidates were nominated in caucus. Bowen ran eighth.

17 BELOW IN SUBURBS OF BOSTON

Unusually Severe Weather Is Reported From Many Nearby Points

Today was the coldest of the year. The official thermometer on top of the Federal building registered two above zero at five o'clock.

In the suburbs, extreme low temperatures were reported, with tales of suffering from all sides because of the lack of coal and proper heating.

The weather man promises no relief until after Sunday.

The official forecast read:

Probably local snow tonight and Sunday morning, followed by clearing; falling temperature Sunday. Fresh west and northwest winds.

Thermometers in St. Johnsbury, Vt., dropped to 40 or more below zero. One registerend 48. In adjoining towns 45 below was reported. At Lyndonville readings were 32 below.

In Keene, N. H., thermometers registered from 18 to 30 degrees below. According to official weather observer Samuel Wadsworth the official reading was 20 below. In West Keene it was 20 below and at Page Farm in Spragville 30 below. Several other places registered 20 and 26 below.

Burlington	—17	Concord Jct.	—14
Concord	—13	Stoughton	— 9
Bedford	—15	E. Lexington	— 9
Lincoln	—10	W. Acton	—10
Arlington C.	— 8	E. Arlington	— 4
Arling'n Hts	— 6	Lexington C.	—15
N. Lexington	— 7

COLD WAVE KILLS TOTALS 26 IN WEST

St. Paul, Feb. 17.—At least twenty-three persons lost their lives in the Northwest as a result of Tuesday's blizzard and the following cold spell, according to figures compiled here today.

Six perished in Seattle, six in Minnesota, three in South Dakota, three in North Dakota and five in Saskatchewan Province, Canada.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Deaths of at least five persons in Chicago were attributed to the cold wave that has embraced this region since Wednesday.

At least two days more of cold weather was forecast.

DR. ELIOT KEPT INDOORS BY COLD

Although still under physician's care, Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, was reported as improving today. He has been forced to keep indoors by a severe cold. Because of the severity of the weather, his doctor's orders are that he shall not leave his home for a few days more.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot

MERCURY TOUCHES 28 BELOW IN BIDDEFORD

Biddeford, Feb. 17.—With local hospitals crowded through a semi-grippe epidemic, so much snow that physicians are unable to use either horses or automobiles and a serious coal situation, the thermometer today made a new low record, 28 below zero. Manufacturers are handicapped in their production by help shortage due to sickness from the long-continued cold wave.

Girl Missing

PASQUALINA ROSSETTI

Parents of sixteen-year-old Somerville girl fear she has been kidnaped. She was to have been married on Washington's Birthday. They seek an East Boston man who was infatuated with her.

KIDNAPED ON WEDDING EVE, PARENTS FEAR

Pasqualina Rossetti, sixteen-year-old daughter of Prisco Rossetti of No. 437 Somerville avenue, Somerville, is missing. Her parents and the police fear that she has been kidnaped.

Pasqualina disappeared while on the way from her home to the rectory of St. Anthony's Church, Somerville, to complete arrangements for her wedding to Antonio Vacca of No. 504 Commonwealth avenue. This was scheduled for Washington's birthday.

The Rev. Nazareno Properzi, the pastor of the church, which is on Vine street, Somerville, says that the girl did not call on him nor did she visit any friends or relatives.

The police are seeking a thirty-year-old East Boston man who was infatuated with the girl and who, on occasions, threatened that she would never marry any man but him.

SOMERVILLE GIRL GONE FROM HOME

Police of Somerville and Boston are searching for Frances Del Verde, sixteen-year-old daughter of Canzio Del Verde, who has been missing from her home, No. 5 Richardson street, Somerville, since Thursday.

Frances Del Verde.

A letter from a soldier at Fort Strong was found in the girl's room. It contained a number of endearing expressions and the writer said he hoped to meet the girl soon. Frances was employed at a Boylston street store. Thursday she left home, apparently to go to work.

She is of dark complexion, is four feet, eleven inches in height, and weighs 105 pounds. She was dressed in a light colored felt hat, gray coat and black patent leather shoes.

TAXI DRIVER BATTLES 2 GUNMEN

Routs Pair Who Seek to Invade His Room; One Suspect Caught in Chase

It listened good.

The plan was to take a rope, and get into the room of David Babich on the second floor of the Hotel Edwards on Bulfinch place, West End. Babich had been flashing a roll in the lobby big enough to shoot at with a machine gun.

So Leo McCue and his pal hired a room on the third floor, spent a dollar for a good strong rope, loaded up their personal hardware, and prepared to visit Mr. Babich. They did not know that Mr. Babich was a taxi-driver from out of Chicago, inured to meet emergencies of all sorts and strongly resentful of any effort to separate him from his taxi earnings. Chicago taxi drivers are that way.

ENTERS LIKE REAL BANDIT.

Mr. McCue and his pal (whose name is yet unknown to the police) knocked on the door of "Taxi Dave" Babich and one of them chirped:

"In the name of the Commonwealth open the door!"

Mr. Babich, as he admitted to the police later, didn't even know what a commonwealth was.

But he opened the door. Mr. McCue remained outside as watcher, while his partner entered, shoving a gun into Mr. Babich's midriff and requested that he shell out. Mr. Babich swung a rabbit punch which landed on the neck of the gunman and he went down with a faint howl.

The door was closed. Outside Mr. McCue waited, visioning a combat in which Mr. Babich was getting his Chicago face altered. He felt sorry for Mr. Babich. They wanted his money, but they hated to hurt the poor chap.

CHASE ENDS IN ARREST.

A moment later the door opened and McCue's pal came hurtling out. He had been dazed by the punch, but not enough. He still had sensibility enough left to run. Seeing him dart down the stairs, Mr. McCue took the cue and followed. Mr. Babich gave chase. The three tore out of the lobby and into the street and through the highways and byways of the West End.

When it was all over, Mr. McCue was under arrest, Mr. Babich out of breath and the victim of the rabbit punch out of sight.

TRUCK HITS POLE 3 ARE SHAKEN UP

Three men were shaken up and traffic on the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway delayed for nearly an hour, when an automobile truck skidded into a trolley pole on Massachusetts avenue near the Munroe Station, Lexington.

The machine was owned by J. M. Miller, No. 275 Norwell street, Dorchester, and operated by James M. MacNeil of No. 30 Maywood street, Roxbury. The front end of the truck was wrecked and the machine was unable to proceed. MacNeil and two other men were shaken up.

WEDDING PLAN NOW IN DOUBT

Couple in Curious Four-Sided Love Tangle Not Sure They Will Marry

Elmer C. Antcliffe and Miss Helen M. Boates of Waltham, who were willing to wait a century to be married, now have their doubts whether there will be a bridal.

At least Elmer said so today.

"Chances are that there will never be a wedding now," he said.

This prophecy was made with less than two months remaining to the time when they could legally wed. Antcliffe is due to receive on April 9 his final decree of divorce from Mrs. Maud Antcliffe, otherwise known as Mrs. Parker C. Mosher of Hyde Park.

MOSHERS ARE "HAPPY."

On the other hand, "Mrs. Mosher," as she is known although she is still Mrs. Antcliffe, says that the affairs of herself and Mosher are "straightened out" and that they are quite happy.

Thus there was intimation that the romance of Mrs. Antcliffe and Mosher will eventually find its way to marriage while the Antcliffe-Boates romance seems going the other way.

"Mrs. Mosher" is the wife who was given to Mosher by Antcliffe eleven years ago with a formal "marriage release" signed by Antcliffe. She has since been accepted as Mrs. Mosher in her own set.

The amazing news of this came to light on Antcliffe's attempt to wed Miss Boates last March. The wedding plans were halted just as the couple were to be married. Antcliffe went to jail for a month for perjury in declaring himself single in his application for license to wed Miss Boates.

STILL GOOD FRIENDS.

"We are still good friends and we shall always be," Antcliffe declared. "But we are not so certain as we were that we want to be married. There is no trouble between us but we simply are not so enthusiastic as we were."

Mrs. Antcliffe and Mosher were brought into court. The case was filed, Mosher being ordered to live apart from "Mrs. Mosher," which he has since done. He lives on Oak street, Hyde Park, just around the corner from his supposed wife, their daughter and another by Antcliffe.

KEEPS UP CHURCH WORK.

"Mrs. Mosher" continues her church activities and is president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Loyal Order of Scottish Clans of Hyde Park. She is active in charitable work.

By the Antcliffe divorce terms Mrs. Antcliffe, or "Mosher," may not re-wed for two years. But she said cheerfully today:

"Our home has never been broken up, although Mr. Mosher and I have tried to comply with the law. We believed ourselves married legally and, when we found out our mistake, it was too late, because of our little daughter. Only time can right things now. We love each other as we always have and our romance has only brought us closer together, instead of separating us."

FIND CHELSEA MAN OVERCOME BY GAS

John Knox was found unconscious from illuminating gas today in his room in Thomas Lowes' house at No. 12 Fourth street, Chelsea. Memorial Hospital reported later that he probably would recover. Gas was flowing from a heater. The police believe the case was accidental. Knox is a shoe cutter, thirty-five and single.

WIFE GIVER'S ROMANCE IS FADING OUT

IN UNIQUE LOVE TANGLE

Above, at left, Elmer C Antcliffe, who "released" his wife, on right, to Parker C. Mosher of Hyde Park, without a divorce and eleven years later was balked from marrying Helen M. Boates of Waltham at the church. Antcliffe and Miss Boates vowed to wait "a century" but now with his divorce about due neither are enthusiastic about marrying.

WORLD BETTER, EVANGELINE BOOTH SAYS

Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the American Salvation Army is in Boston today to attend the annual congress of New England officers of the organization.

Commander Booth is as vivid and stimulating as ever and is bubbling over with enthusiasm and plans for the future. Of her threatened removal from leadership in the United States, Commander Booth said:

"I am a soldier. If my superior feels for any reason that someone could fill my post better than I am filling it, I shall obey his commands unhesitatingly. My brother, General Bramwell Booth, is in command, and I await his orders," she said with dignity. She admitted that influential men all over the country cabled to General Booth protesting against his threatened intention of putting someone else in charge.

The beautiful little Titian-haired commander of the "Sallies," did not deny that she and her brother had had a difference of opinion as to the way the United States Salvation Army should be managed. "But I have never seen a woman who didn't differ from a man in her way of doing things. We haven't the same viewpoint at all.

"The world is in a better state than it has been for ten years. People are alive to good influences as they have never been before. There is no cause for discouragement."

The Commander commended Col. McIntyre, in charge of the New England contingent on his work in spreading the "Sally Service."

"During the last two years the New England Salvation Army has raised almost a million dollars. They own their headquarters in sixty-eight cities and they are buying property in the remaining twelve places," Commander Booth stated.

The congress will continue until Wednesday, and about 300 officers from all parts of New England have come to Boston to attend. There will be a banquet this evening at Ford Hall.

HELD IN AUTO THEFT AFTER COLLISION

Joseph M. Brennan, 25 years old, of No. 121 Bunker Hill street, in Charlestown court today pleaded guilty to charges of operating an auto without a license or certificate of registration. This was the aftermath of an accident early today at Main street, near Winthrop street, when an automobile driven by Brennan hit an elevated post. Brennan pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing the automobile, the property of Homer Brothers, Pearl street, Boston. The case was continued. He was held in $600.

MATCHED WITS WITH ROBBERS; GETS $153,000

Cincinnati, Feb. 17.—Recovery of $73,000 worth of bonds, part of $265,000 stolen from the Hamilton County Bank here, last September, and $80,000 in unused Federal Reserve Bank currency stolen in the holdup of the Denver Mint, was revealed today by Federal officers and private detectives.

This recovery was the result of the matching of wits by E. H. Matthews, who was president of the Hamilton County Bank, with a band of crooks who were trying to dispose of stolen securities of many kinds, the total face value of which is believed to be about a million dollars.

The $73,000 recovered by Mr. Matthews was at a cost of $28,000.

The clew came through the discovery that an effort was being made to sell in Minneapolis ten $1,000 Philippine government bonds, which were a part of the loot stolen from the Hamilton County Bank but which purposely was not included in the published list of stolen bonds.

Mr. Matthews went to Minneapolis, conferred with postoffice inspectors and private detectives, and a plan to negotiate for the stolen bonds was arranged.

A man, designated only as "Mr. X," was introduced to the agent of the robbers as a North Dakota banker, who desired to make large purchases of stolen securities to cover his shortage in his bank.

After careful negotiations, "Mr. X" paid $5,000 to the robbers' agent and the ten Philippine bonds were delivered to him. Then negotiations for other securities began. A second deal resulted in purchase of other bonds.

A third deal with the robbers' agent resulted in the recovery of $80,000 of unused money that was stolen from the Denver mint, but "Mr. X" had to pay $48,000 for it. It was discovered that the band of thieves had $973,000 of stolen bonds and securities which they wanted to dispose of. But negotiations suddenly ceased, something having happened which caused the band of robbers to become suspicious.

GIRL, 16, ACCUSES MARRIED MAN

Pretty sixteen-year-old Alice A. Selma of Bayview road, Cliftondale, mother of a nameless child, took the stand today in Saugus court and told of being attacked by Arthur Gillespie of Cliftondale.

Gillespie is thirty-nine and married. The young mother accuses him of being the father of her child. The defendant sat in court with his wife.

Before a crowded courtroom the girl said she was attacked by Gillespie on a road on Bakers' Hill, Cliftondale, on May, 23, 1922. He was intoxicated, she testified.

When asked by Judge Ludden why her parents were not in the court, she broke down and wept. Gillespie was held in $3,000 bail for the grand jury.

Family Dead by Gas

SPORTS REVIEW

SPORT FANS ARE FLEECED BY TICKET SPECULATORS

CLAIM HOLD-UP MEN IN EMPLOY OF CLUBS

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY,
Sporting Editor.

Now for a little session with the ticket speculators who follow the various sporting events and fleece the poor sport fans. From all sides and for some time we have been receiving complaints regarding this "champion nuisance." This week the kicks have been decidedly numerous—as a result of a big week in the ring, on the mat and rink.

J. B. Gillooly

According to the majority of the letters and calls—a selected few have the choice seats at the different sporting events, and those who are unfortunate enough to have to wait until the night of the event to secure their tickets are forced to do business with these hold-up artists—pay a big premium, or wait their turn in line—which isn't the most cheerful thing in the world these cold Winter nights.

To make matters worse, it is hinted by a number of the "boys who pay the freight" that the clubs running the affairs have certain of these "specs" in their employ and that they are given the tickets in ample time to get a good sale on the outside.

The fans are supporting the sport game in Boston as in no other city, and it is up to the clubs to encourage them.

Twilight League Leaders Start the Ball Rolling

Claude B. Davidson, president of Boston and Massachusetts Twilight Baseball Leagues, has started the ball rolling for the 1923 season and has given out some facts and figures that are likely to come as a severe shock to some of the big league managers.

According to President Davidson the Twilighters played to some million fans, and when the short season and the rainy season of 1922 is taken into consideration, this is a remarkable record for the league's first season.

Davidson is making a fight for daylight saving and is using the league's record as one of his best arguments in favor of the bill.

BOXING AND WRESTLING

By JACK CONWAY,
Boxing and Wrestling Editor.

Now comes the calm after the storm. After three busy nights of boxing, one of wrestling and a flock of evenings taken up with hockey, the tired fan can take a short rest next week with the amateurs and the Armory A. A. show the only boxing in sight for the Boston fans.

Jack Conway

There is a lot stirring in the near future, however, with a fine collection of wrestling matches and ring bouts. Even Johnny Wilson may break up his long vacation, as there is talk now of a match between the Charlestown champion and Roland Todd, who recently defeated Ted Kid Lewis in a London title bout.

Floyd H. Johnson, the Iowa giant, who is groomed to take the "will" out of Willard, is back on the job after a severe illness, which threatened to put over the near title match, and everything is all set again for their meeting in May.

It has been a tough week for several of the boxers who performed in local rings this week. Young Manty, who was touted as a world beater, made his debut at the Triple A. show and turned out to be more or less of a bloomer. Frankie Mason, of whom nice things were said and writen, also fell by the wayside as a rival of Villa for flyweight honors, while Sailor Freidman, the Windy City champion, failed to startle the boxing world hereabouts with his fighting ability.

The old wrestling game is still going on high, with Calza, Kotsonaros, Stasiak, Pesek, and all other local favorites, not forgotting to mention Joe Perelli, signing up for what promises to be the busiest season in the mat game.

BASEBALL

Formation of Subsidiary League Not New Idea

By NICK FLATLEY.
Baseball Editor.

Formation of a league, which might prove a feeder to the majors, has been discussed for several years, and indications at present are that the plan is being seriously considered. And, it seems to us, it's a mighty sensible notion. Good minor league players have become so expensive in the past few years that none, except the million dollar clubs, can afford to get the stars. Consequently the game is in danger of becoming top heavy. New York is on the roof, and if present conditions continue will probably stay there. Sprinkling clubs around where promising players could be developed would obviate the heavy expense, would allow clubs to have possession of good youngsters and would eliminate the endless squabbles that arise when some minor league hero is claimed by a couple of clubs.

Nick Flatley

This is by no means a new idea; in fact, the International League already has a couple of little circuits that are its personal property. President John Conway Toole is so strong for the scheme that he has plans drawn up which would place assistant International leagues in all parts of the East. At present his circuit has one feeder in Ohio and one down Virginia-Carolina way.

Fred Mitchell, manager of the Braves, has been cheering for some such plan for years and years. He had a bunch—and a might good one—to start a sort of baseball school for the Boston National rookies. Big league clubs, according to Fred, spend thousands annually, paying scouts, buying kids. Then when the cleanup season comes, the majority of the baby players are sent back, and drift out of sight.

If these youngsters who have inherent ability, could be taught and instructed in the game as it is played in the large leagues, a whole lot of them would develop into regulars, in the Mitchell belief. It's a cinch that Fred will try the plan, if he gets a club that happens to be a money maker. In the meantime the feeder league offers some help along the same lines.

News of the local clubs has been nil during the past few days, but Chance has another Red Sox deal on the fire, which he will announce over the week end, while the Braves are daily expecting confirmation of their contract with Jocko Conlon.

HARVARD WRESTLERS TACKLE DARTMOUTH

Harvard's varsity wrestling team tackles the Dartmouth grapplers at Hanover, N. H. Harvard is strong in the 135 and 175-pound classes. Captain Freedman, who weighs less than 135 pounds, can take good care of himself and hopes to defeat Henretta, the Green 135-pound boy.

Dartmouth's team is: 115-pounds, Wellmen; 125 pounds, Scott; 135 pounds, Henretta; 145 pounds Borglum; 158 pounds, Bauman; 175 pounds, Foss, and heavyweight, Overlander.

FRIEND NICK—I have just been to a photographer to have the w. k. map perpetuated and I am still suffering as the result of the heartless treatment accorded me. I put on my new suit, trick vest and silk shirt. I used glossum on my unruly wool, wore a collar that entirely obliterated the Adam's apple, draped a new lavender bordered nose linen from my upstairs pocket, and altogether felt myself a fine figure of a man.

That was before I went. Just ten minutes after I entered that infernal place, I felt like eight cents worth of waste matter and considered that I owed my fond parents a grudge for not having disposed of me during infancy. In the first place, the egg told me to stand up and then smiled sarcastically as he begged me to straighten out my legs, unfasten my knees and then hold my spine as erect as possible. I tried with such effect that he inquired in a tone that suggested endless things if I had ever had meningitis. He next undressed me more or less, turned down the collar, took out the beautiful rose linen, unbuttoned my jacket, retied my tie, and roughened up my hair. By this time I was so far gone that I was as clay in his hands. He twisted my head around twice until I labored under the impression that he was taking a back view and he criticised my eyes, ears, nose and mouth and various other parts of my anatomy. At the conclusion of this process, he hid behind a curtain and shouted directions at me, which I obeyed as one hypnotized. He then turned me over to a giggling young assistant who got me out onto street. Last week I called for the photos and pai $50 before I saw them. They were anything but a success. I looked like Nero just before he touched the button at the ancient Rome bonfire. My own wife asked me who was it when I presented the likenesses so called, and upon finding out, she promptly concealed them in the attic with the Summer screens. I am quite helpless according to the law as far as revenge is concerned, and I wish that you would start a movement against these bucket shop photographers, who run their film flam game unhampered by any authority or conscience.

SCHOOLBOYS

Boston College High and Dorchester Reported at Odds

By FRED C. LANE.
Schoolboy Indoor Amateur Editor.

The report is going the rounds that Boston College High and Dorchester have broken relations. It is seldom that an incident of this sort takes place. Though it has not been publicly announced, the source of our information is reliable. The first evidence of these strained relations took place at the recent Dorchester-B. C. High track meet. When the games were arranged Coach Bill Prendegast protested Barney McDermott of the Maroon and Gold team. He claimed Barney was ineligible to compete by the rules of the Boston High School Athletic Association.

Fred Lane

It seems Barney had run two years for Trade School and the same number for West Roxbury. Apparently this aroused the ire of Coach Bill Dempsey of the St. James street school, for when the meet got under way it was evident that the best of feeling did not exist between the two mentors.

To bring the matter to a climax, Dempsey insisted in entering more men in the various events than called for by the rules of the athletic council. Coach Prendegast objected and refused to go on with the meet unless matters were corrected.

Every incident that took place, that in other times might go unnoticed, was fought. Arguments over picking the winners at the tape, alleged fouling on the corners and all sorts of discussions heated up the situation.

Prendegast was roused as a result and in an off-handed way said, "We are all through with B. C. High."

From this we take it for granted that there will be no B. C. High-Dorchester baseball game next Spring.

There were few spectators in the large crowd at the Huntington-Harvard freshman meet who knew that Bill Luce, the Huntington shot putter, got out of a sick bed to help his team in the weight event.

Though Bill failed to carry off the five points that would have won for his team, he nevertheless displayed a brand of grit and determination that is hard to beat.

Normally he is capable of hurling the iron forty-six feet. He hurled the shot far enough but fouled on his three attempts and gave a Harvard man with a put of forty-one feet first honors and Harvard victory.

NORTHEASTERN HAS SIX IN K. C. MEET

The Northeastern Engineers entered six in the K. of C. meet tonight. J. H. Torrey, who took the forty-five-yard dash at the triangular meet, is entered for the short distances. H. O. Fundin, captain of the Engineers, will run in the 600. W. N. Parsons and J. Sampson will perform in the 1,000-yard run. W. H. Young is entered for the high hurdles, and R. G. Maurette will show his wares in the 300-yard run.

ALL READY FOR NEW ENGLAND MAT BOUTS

Great preparations are being made for the coming New England A. A. U. wrestling championships, which will be staged at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday night.

Already more than fifty entries have been received, and among them are Spellman of Brown University, intercollegiate champion grappler, Henry Sparks of the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. and Hereford of M. I. T.

In the 147-pound class, George Meyerson of the Boston Y. M. C. U., who is New England title holder, will be pitted against Henry Sparks of Cambridge "Y.," who is champion of the Y. M. C. A.

Henry Sparks

One national champion will perform. He is Emile Wolfe of Manchester, N. H. The champion will have for his opponent Welding Kolsted of the Norwegian A. C. of Hyde Park, New England title holder. In the 175-pound class Walter Jacobs of Beverly will have for an opponent Earl A. Thierien of Newport, R. I. They finished one-two last year at the meet held in Providence.

OWENS AND NEE IN ARMORY'S MAIN BOUT

On Tuesday evening the local fistic fans will be given a treat at the Grand Opera House when Paddy Owens, Irish mitt wielder, will oppose Tommy Nee of South Boston in the main bout of ten rounds. The bout will be staged under the direction of the Armory A. A. and should be a fine battle.

Paddy Owens

These two lads have mingled inside the squared circle on two occasions and each has been credited with a victory. This tussle is booked as the rubber.

Abe Freidman was to meet the youth from the Peninsula, but the Hebrew bantamweight champion of New England was unable to appear. So Matchmaker McLean secured Owens.

Along with the feature bout of ten rounds there will be three eight-rounders. In the semi-final, "Dotty" O'Neil of Lynn will mingle with Jimmy Manning, also of South Boston. "Scotty" Welsh of Roxbury will try his wares against Jimmy Smith of Brockton. The curtain-raiser will be between "Spike" Hennessey of Waltham and Young McDonough of South Boston.

TECH GYMNASTS WIN IN TRIANGULAR MEET

The Technology gymnasts started their season in great style and completely outclassed the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard teams. The score was Tech, 29, U. of P., 14, and Harvard, 12. Tech showed beautifully on the horse and rings. The Penn team would have done better had they brought along competitors for the horse and tumbles.

Parsonnet's tumbling was the feature of the meet while Captain Bill Vicinus on the horse, and Jack McCoy on the rings, performed in flashly style.

The summary:

WORCESTER TRADE BEATS B. C. HIGH

Worcester, Feb 17.—The Worcester Trade School basketball five defeated Boston College High, 23 to 13, in a closely played game. Follet and Fitzgerald scored all of their team's points and Walden and Shields did the greatest part of the scoring for the Boston team.

MOTOR NEWS AND NOTES

MAJ. PARKER OF PACKARD FORCE RETIRES

The Packard Motor Car Company of Boston announces the retirement of Major Robert B. Parker. He has accepted the position of president and general manager of the Packard Company in Philadelphia.

Major Parker is a graduate of West Point and worked his way up in the Packard Company from the mechanical department to general manager.

PROMOTED IN WAR.

In the World War, although above draft age, he volunteered and, as a result of the West Point training, received a commission as captain, and for meritorious service was promoted to the rank of major.

He is being succeeded by Lieutenant Roy A. Metler, another veteran of the World War, and a young man who worked himself up in the Alvan T. Fuller organization from a clerk in the specification department to the general managership of the business. In the World War, Lieutenant Metler enlisted as a private, was promoted to sergeant and then first lieutenant.

ABLE DEPARTMENT HEADS.

Lieutenant Metler, like Major Parker, will be surrounded by able heads of departments who have for years been associated with the Boston business since Mr. Fuller was actively in harness.

Irving H. Boles will continue as territorial manager; W. P. Naylor, manager of used car sales department; J. B. MacRobert, treasurer; N. Frank Neer, manager of Single Six sales division, and C. A. Robinson, manager of Twin Six sales division.

The Packard Motor Car Company of Boston is often referred to as the largest and most successful retail automobile establishment in the United States and heads the list of all Packard distributors.

Big Values Will Be Feature of Auto Show

While the twenty-first annual Boston Automobile Show, which opens its doors for an eight-day run on March 10, will be packed with countless features and attractions, including all things relating to motor cars, the one thing standing above all others which will appeal to every motorist will be value. Whether it be a passenger car or a truck, value predominates. Never before has there been such value-giving in the automobile world.

MORE CLOSED CARS.

This year's show will stress the fact that all-year driving is making rapid strides and that the manufacturers have at last heeded the demand for more closed models. The industry today is turning out a closed car for every open one where last year it was 60-40 in favor of the open models.

With the big show but three weeks away, nothing remains now but the decorating of the five big halls and the basement and balconies. All spaces have been sold, although a few manufacturers are still holding out in the hope that something will fall their way. Every bit of space for the salon, which will be held in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel, the 12th to 18th, has also been taken, mostly by the makers of the several well known types of American and foreign cars.

SALON A SHOW IN ITSELF.

To many, this will be a show in itself, and the hours have been set at 1 p. m. to midnight, to accommodate those who like to make the salon something of a social affair.

Practically all the local dealers have received their show cars and are only waiting for the crowd to get into the building; artists and decorators have much of their scenery ready for assembling and will probably require about three days with the help of a hundred men to put on the finishing touches.

SALES RECORD BY OVERLAND IN CHICAGO

All automobile show sales records were eclipsed by the Overland Motor Company of Chicago, the Willys-Overland branch in Chicago, with the announcement at the conclusion of the annual automobile show week by President A. C. Barber of the Overland Motor Company, that his organization and the Chicago dealers had sold 519 cars at retail during the show week from January 27 to February 3 inclusive.

This record more than doubled the mark set by the New York branch, which sold 230 cars during the annual New York automobile show, a record, which at that time was considered wonderful. But Chicago surpassed New York, and more than doubled the retail sales.

"In all my experience with Willys-Overland," said President Barber, "I have never seen such enthusiasm, or such sales activity. Dealers and public alike received our new line with such wholehearted support that we were astounded. The results in sales made at retail are proof of this statement:

"And, but for the fact that we had the most disagreeable weather of the entire Winter, below zero weather in fact the last two days of the show, I believe that we would have topped our sales record of 519 retail sales."

JIMMY AMATO WINS OVER LEO LEONARD

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 17.—Jimmy Amato, the crack East Side welterweight, easily whipped Leo Leonard in ten fast rounds. Leonard at least had fifteen pounds in weight, and also height and reach. Amato dropped Leonard once for the count of six, but he was game and managed to go the distance.

In another bout Pete Hayes, the East Side lightweight, knocked Joe Jackson to the land of dreams in the third round.

—the twenty-five and better gasoline mileage of the Overland—its Timken and New Departure bearings in front and rear axles.

DECRIES STORIES ABOUT $50,000 FOR SEASON

By GENE SARAZEN.
World's Champion Golfer.

Immediately after winning the national open championship I obtained permission from my club to visit my parents. I wanted to tell them of my good fortune and I knew that they would be anxious to see me. For about a week or ten days I was like a man in a trance. I could scarcely realize what it was all about.

Gene Sarazen

With the strain of the competition over, I suffered a "relax"—so to speak. All golfers do after a big competition. When I resumed playing, I couldn't hit the ball at all.

I remained in this slump for about ten days, and no matter how hard I tried it seemed absolutely impossible for me to hit a shot. I was wild and my form was wretched.

I would advise all golfers, after a hard tournament, to keep right on playing and to work back to top form gradually with a little practice each day. This, I think, is the best method, for if you lay off the game for a spell, particularly after a tournament, it is extremely hard to get back to form and to get the proper touch.

A few weeks after the Skokie tournament I began to receive offers for exhibition matches. One of these came from the Spring Lake Club. It wanted me to select my own opponent. When I named Jim Barnes my friends were astonished.

"Why are you picking Barnes to play against?" they asked. "If he beats you, they will all say your winning of the National Open was an accident."

"Well," I replied, "if I am going to be beaten I prefer to be the victim of a top-notcher rather than of some mediocre player. I feel my chances to defeat Barnes are just as good as they would be against any other players."

It so happened that I was going very well at Spring Lake and managed to defeat Long Jim by 5 and 4.

Big Open Should Pay at Least $5,000

Other exhibition matches followed, all of them four-ball games. It is from those games that I derived most of my revenue last Summer, and this leads me to the explanation of the actual money a champion makes in a season. I won't get rich this year and I never heard of any other champion in golf cleaning up in a single season.

I smile when I read how I will build up a "bank account of $50,000" this year! There isn't that much money in the world—at least for me. To begin with, we (and that goes for the majority of the field) get nothing out of the National Open Championship.

I hope the time will come when the man who wins this title will receive a substantial sum from the U. S. G. A. By a substantial sum I mean at least $5,000.

No Reason Now, as U. S. G. A. Charges Fee

And I would like to know one good reason why the winner should not receive this amount, especially now that the U. S. G. A. is charging a gate fee.

I know of no show or exhibition or competition more thrilling or more interesting than a National Open Tournament. Men who have worked and practiced for years—have given their whole life, in fact, to build up the game of golf—convene for this competition. In what other field of sport is the champion so meagrely paid?

To sum up, the winning of the National Open Golf title offers these possibilities—a better position; exhibition matches to the number of perhaps twenty-five or thiry, at an average fee of $250, and a few other incidental prizes.

Would Not Exchange With Jack or Babe

I am really not complaining, for I would not exchange my title for Jack Dempsey's or Babe Ruth's or any other athlete's. I believe golf to be the most scientific and the highest class kind of sport in existence, and the time is coming with the tremendous growth in popularity when champions in golf will be amply rewarded.

And I might mention, also, that a golf champion has greater responsibility than any other title-holder.

The fighter is seen only in the ring, and from a distance the baseball player is seen on the field of action, so are tennis stars, football players, bicycle riders and all others.

But a golf star is in immediate touch with the spectators at all times. They follow closely upon his heels, watch every action he makes with critical eyes, and are in position to pounce upon him if he shows any indication of not meeting with the approval of the public.

Exhibition Matches Helped to Keep Him in Shape

After I had recovered from the strain of the National Tournament, I began playing well again. My exhibition matches helped me considerably to keep in condition; also, I still managed, between games, to get in a certain amount of practice.

I had my eye on the professional championship and was working for the title also.

I felt confident about that meeting, and figured that if I could defeat such a great field as was at Skokie in medal play I ought to have as good, if not a better chance, of winning in the professional tournament where match play is the game.

HORSE RACING

Johnny Loftus, Leading Jockey of Country, Quits the Saddle to Become Trainer—Some Long Shots.

By GUS DALY,
Horse Editor.

Johnny Loftus, generally considered, a year or two ago, as being the cleverest jockey in this country, will ride no more—nature has handed down this decision. He has outgrown himself, but not his usefulness. He is now trainer for Glendinning J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, and has in his care one of the most pretentious stables quartered at Belmont Park. If "Johnny" has the success as trainer that he met with as a rider, the turf will be the gainer.

Gus Daly

W. R. Coe, racing enthusiast of New York city recently paid $110,000 for The Finn, the high-class, eleven-year-old black son of Ogden. This is the highest price an American-bred stallion has ever brought. Kai Sang, Oceanic, Zed and Bud Lerner, the latter two Kentucky Derby candidates, are a sample of his get.

Joseph Marrone (Marrone Stables), who has raced horses steadily since the days of Old Guttenberg and Clifton, thirty years back, will have eight good ones to draw from this season.

The meeting at the Fair Grounds was the most successful one ever held, the winning of the Mardi Gras Handicap by Best Pal brought to the post the best bunch of racers of the Winter, and in gaining the victory Best Pal displayed a fine performance.

Trainer O. Pons has taken the William Daniel string to Tia Juana. His high class Star Jester, which won five out of eight starts in Canada last Summer, has been given a special "prep" at this track for his coming campaign through the Maryland meetings.

Pierre Lorillard, of the famous turf family of that name, and which raced under the Rancocas Stable name, was a visitor during the week, as was also Major A. A. Jones, U. S. A., and Dr. H. L. Casey of Panama City.

Gondolier, at 50 to 1, was the opening day's sensation at Jefferson Park. In his previous excursion he was quoted at 3 to 1. Oh what a difference just a few hours make.

Lieutenant William J. Murray is one performing at this course. He scampered home in front recently and shattered all "mutuel" records at this place. Two "iron" men paid three lucky holders $696.50 each. Two Americanos and a son of China were the fortunate ones. We are led to believe the winner was a "first" lieutenant. All this happened last Sabbath Day.

Dr. Hickman has the sign on the sprinting division, his recent three-quarters in 111 3-5 being the fastest whirl of the season.

AMATEUR STARS IN TRI-CITY TOURNEY

"Red" O'Grady of the U. S. S. Florida, the sensation of the amateur boxing season, will be seen in action again at the international tri-city tournament to be held at Mechanics' Building next Monday night.

The fans are showing as much interest in the three open classes as they are in the inter-city bouts, and all the stars of Greater Boston will participate in the open classes.

O'Grady sent his entry yesterday for the 147 pound division. This means trouble for the boys in this class, as the sailor boxer is regarded as the most promising in amateur mitt circles. De Russo of Newton also is entered in this class. Eddie Davis of the South End is another in this division.

Followers of the simon pure game are strong for O'Grady, and as it has been some time since he has been seen in action, his presence is sure to result in a huge crowd.

Corporal Dan Lucas, Company D, 14th Infantry, Fort Strong, who proved a sensation in the last St. Joseph's tournament has informed Manager William H. Cuddy that he will be on hand to compete in the heavyweight division. Lucas looks like a comer and he is anxious to win the class. Tom Kirby of Roxbury and Roy Moses of Boston are other heavyweight favorites already entered.

STASIAK MEETS CALZA ON THE HOLIDAY

The Howard management has arranged the treat of the season for their all-star show at the Grand Opera House next Thursday night. They have signed George Calza, the Italian wrestler and Stanley Stasiak, the Polish Hercules. Stasiak agrees to throw Calza in seventy-five minutes actual wrestling time or forfeit his share of the gate receipts. Stasiak will have the advantage in weight, reach and strength. Calza, while a giant in stature and twenty-two years old, will meet in Stasiak a bigger man and one in his prime, only twenty-five years old. Stasiak plans to train in public at the Union gymnasium and any aspiring grappler is welcome to try him out. There is intense rivalry among the Poles and Italians as Stasiak is held in the same regard among the Polish population of Boston as Calza is among the Italians.

George Calza

The management have matched George Kotsonaros, the Greek champion and Peter Goulette, the French light heavyweight. Peter weighs 185. He can be counted upon to make the Greek champion go at top speed to beat him.

Another bout on the card will be between Joe Perelli, the Italian middle-weight champion and Eddie Boylan, the Swedish middleweight champ.

BASKETBALL CARNIVAL AT THE 'Y'

The Boston Y. M. C. A. will stage a basketball carnival at the Huntington avenue court tonight.

The headline will be an inter-city game between the John P. Squire Co. quintet of Cambridge, Cambridge Industrial League leaders, with a record of nine wins and no reverses, and the American Glue Company, Boston City League leaders, who won eleven straight games.

J. P. Squire Company—Lb., Crowe; rb., Gallagant; c., Callahan; lf. Walsh; rf., Alexander.

There will be two preliminary games. Wetmore-Savage Co. will stack up against the Decatur-Hopkins fire and the Northeastern College of Business Administration will play the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy.

CORNELL PLAYS HARVARD ON ARENA ICE

The two hockey games scheduled tonight at the Arena should thrill. Harvard will play Cornell and the Victorias will match their skill with the Canadian Club of New York in a league game.

The Cornell following in this city will be on hand to root for their favorites. Harvard does not underestimate Cornell's strength. Coach Bill Claflin expects to have his full power on the ice.

The other game should provide plenty of fun for the fans.

Checking of all sorts will be injected into this club game. Big Six Raymie Skilton will use his 215 pounds on opponents with the same perfect abandon that he showed a dozen years ago in the B. A. A.-Intercolonial series.

DEAN AND CUSHING HAVE A RELAY RACE

Dean Academy and Cushing Academy, prep school rivals, will have it out on the board track at the Boston Y. M. C. A. this afternoon in the Huntington School meet, when they meet in a relay race

FINE CARD FOR CASEY INDOOR TRACK MEET

The second annual Knights of Columbus games are staged in Mechanics Hall tonight. The contests will present thrills, for the racing should be of the finest.

Leroy Brown of Dartmouth will meet Johnny Murphy of Notre Dame in the running high jump. They are at the top of the leaping game. One has been national champion a number of times, and the other is a joint holder of the world indoor record in the event.

The sprint opens the meet and calls out Bob McAllister, Bernie Wefers, Jr., Miller, the Williams dash, Ed Farrell, Andy Kelley and Charley Carroll. McAllister will be a novelty. New York's flying cop is a fine performer, and he must be in the best of condition to lead the field.

The invitation forty yard dash will be run in two heats with a final.

The forty-five yard hurdle field has attractions. T. S. Anderson, formerly of Dartmouth, and joint holder of the world indoor mark of six seconds, is one of the starters.

The 600 will be run in heats. Limit men will start from the twenty-eight-yard mark. In the first heat Al Nelson of the Loughlin Lyceum, with four yards, is the low mark man. Clarence Archibald of Bates will start from scratch in the second and Joe Nutter of Brown, with six yards, is low mark man in the third.

The Casey mile is the big attraction. Seven starters means a battle and the field is well matched. Pat Mahoney of Boston College, Francis Merriam of Boston University, Elmer Sanborn of Tech, Bob Brown of the B. A. A., Bob Dalrymple of the Dorchester Club, Ed Brooks from Georgetown and Abel Kiviat of the Wilco A. C. will fight.

Kiviat will be the cynosure of all eyes when the race is called. The old-time mile star will have the sympathy of everyone.

There is a 1000-handicap, with Joe Higgins on scratch. He never has been defeated in this event in Boston.

The Boston College, Holy Cross, Georgetown and Fordham race for the Cardinal O'Connell cup is the feature contest; the Boston Athletic Newark A. C., Harvard meets Tech in a short distance race and Dartmouth in a 780-yard per man dual.

Old Belfry Meets Waban

The first of a series of two inter-club nights by the Old Belfry Club of Lexington and the Waban Club will be held this evening, at Newton. There will be competitions in bowling, billiards, pool and cards.

TRACK AND ICE HOCKEY

Why Not a Harvard-B.C Hockey Game? Joie Ray [redacted] at It—Dartmouth Loses Track Stars

By CHARLES E. PARKER.
Club and College Sports Editor.

"Harvard could beat B. C."

You will find every hockey enthusiast in Greater Boston supporting one or the other side of that argument and, more's the pity, they'll continue to be so engaged throughout the remaining weeks of the Winter season.

Charles Parker

We agree with the contention that on B. C. shoulders rests chief responsibility for the break in Harvard B. C. athletic relations. Its cancellation of hockey, track and baseball engagements with the Crimson, which followed Harvard's failure to sign B. C. for a football match, was a glaring bit of bad judgment.

But several years have intervened since then—several years during which each has been among the leaders in all branches of college sports; several years during which the keenest rivalry has existed among the representative athletes and the students of the represented schools, several years during which such athletes and such students and the public generally have batted back and forth the rival claims to superiority—high time for actions of the past to be forgotten and satisfaction granted the athletes, students and supporting public in the form of sports engagements between the two institutions.

And what a lovely time and occasion to patch up differences and settle at least one of these athletic arguments now exists. B. C. with an unbroken string of victories over college foes and Harvard with only a single college defeat, and that from a team which Harvard will meet again and possibly conquer, they are in the front rank in college hockey. [illegible] better team, [illegible] about equally [illegible] over the issue. From every angle a game between the pair would outmatch locally any hockey happening ever staged hereabout. What a game it would prove.

The Arena's best offering to date was Thursday night's Unicorn-New Haven battle which, largely through the brilliant play of Irving Small, Jerry Geran, Ag Smith and French LaCroix, resulted in the B. A. A. gaining a commanding position in the Eastern Division of the Amateur Hockey League.

That game, among other things, proved that "rough stuff" need have no part in high class hockey. It abounded in thrills yet was cleanly played throughout. It gave strength to the contention that questionable tactics in hockey is a confession of one of two things, i.e., lack of hockey skill, or lack of self control.

In track, the week just ending found Joie Ray continuing his record-breaking work of the past month—among other things toppling Alfy Shrubb's long standing two mile mark, and world's records for other distances.

Dartmouth's loss through scholastic difficulties of W[illegible] crack [illegible] sprinter, Roger [illegible]arris, [illegible] and broad jumper and several other [illegible] varsity track athletes [illegible] big batch of freshman track and football stars, was [illegible] regrettable feature of the week in college athletics.

With the annual Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth triangular meet coming next Saturday and the annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. indoor championships the following week, the loss of these track men will prove a costly one to Dartmouth's track hopes.

BIG CROWD AT ARENA FOR GOLD SKATES RACES

from a personal gathering of friends. Principal interest centred in the two big races, the finals for boys over eighteen and the championship for girls of like ages. But the youngsters, the title owners of the future, provided plenty of excitement and plenty of speed as well.

There was not a hitch in the program, the Arena officials and the judges and inspectors who so kindly volunteered their services handling things like clockwork.

The first winner of the day was little Thomas Flynn of Somerville, who showed the way in the first semi-final for boys under fourteen. Max Stone of Dorchester won the second heat and travelled a fifth of a second faster than his victorious rival.

Miss Kolodny, who lives at No. 50 Forsyth street, Back Bay, was the initial gold skate winner. She led Bertha Rump and Frances Kinsley to the judges, and was the happiest youngster in New England as she swept by ahead.

EVENT NO. 1.

First heat won by Ethel Marquardt, No. 108 Bernard street, Dorchester; Mass.; second, Helen Mahoney, No. 46 Vale street, Roxbury, Mass.

Time—31 seconds.

EVENT NO. 4.

Final heat, for girls under 14.

Won by Janette Transman, No. 31 Browning street, Dorchester; second, Ruth Peck, No. 66 [illegible] street, Dorchester; third, Dorothy Sahagian, No. 8 Browning avenue, Dorchester. Time—34 3-5 seconds.

EVENT NO. 10

ANOTHER AMATEUR TOURNEY ON FEB. 26

Boston Council, Knights of Colum- [redacted] announce February 26 as the date for their second tourney in Scenic Auditorium.

There will be open competition in four classes at 112, 118, 126 and 135 pounds. Gold watches will be distributed as first and second honors to contestants in each division.

Frank McGrath, No. 226 Tremont street, will manage the tournament. Boxers may obtain entry blanks from him.

"You're never [illegible] me but starting something around this joint. Wait until after dinner."

"Oh, Hot dawg, bring on the eats, Mom. I wanta show Pop I ain't no dod when it comes to [illegible]ing."

"Where do you get your courage, kid? Do you think because your first name is Tom that you're an Edison?"

"Gee whiz, from the way youse talk you think you were Marconi's brother or sumpin'. I ain't an Edison or a Marconi, but gosh ding it! I know how to get this thing started."

"Oh dear, oh dear. The two of you are worse than the old radio. You're always barking at each other."

"D'dja eat enough, Pop? Well, let's go in the parlor and I'll tune her in now. Didn't I show you last night?"

"No. Don't tune her in now. You [illegible] out and get me some tobacco."

"Say, sweet woman, haven't you got any better sense than to leave that kid monkeyshine with that machine? I guess you knew I wanted to listen in tonight."

"Why do you say such a thing, Oswald? I think you should be happy to know that Tommy is so clever."

"Here's your tobacco, Pop. I'll start the thing going."

"How in heaven is your mother and me going to hear what's coming over? Why don't you let me put the receivers on?"

Dotty Dill's Diary

By La Monte Waldron

JAN. 20—Well, dairy, I oughta [illegible] Chet [illegible] out a my mind but [illegible] I had to go an' neck over the goldfish bowl again. How [illegible] happened is this. After I give him the [illegible] over to the kabaret dance to where he took at vamp Margear Jessup an wich person he [illegible] to make up with me, Chet apparently's got to wise to himself. An' so the folerin day he bue himself to a wreath of flours an sent em up to me via Bonehed Blacey. Did I except em? I did not. I rote a note wich says Wat you take me for, a funerl an wy dont you send em to the vamp? Jest like at. An I give them flours a round trip back to Chet. I understand Chet was waitin down the street to git the glad tidins an wen Bonehed hands the flours to him Chet kicks em into the gutter and beats it very angregated.

Wy does us wimmen do these things I ast you? Wy is it wen they slip us the dove of piece we crack it over the bean stead of givin it the glad hand? Wy O wy? Dairy this here sex to wich I belong is a mystery. take it from one of it. I oughta had Chet safe and sane with me but where he is to nite I no not of.

I hang around all evening hopin he'd [illegible] to be throwed down an show up an grab me like a cave guy. So I sets here tryin to read [illegible] but [illegible] No Chet! Dairy I ought to be shoved into a [illegible] factory. I'm sich a big simp. The world is dark an there's more work tomorrer. O me! O gee.

Jan. 21—Dairy, I'm so full of joy [illegible] the work at [illegible] Wy all these ravins? [illegible] has came back.

The green eye monster has got him. Did I grab him wen he come? I did not. Too surprized. He says hello kid an [illegible] No talkin of vamps [illegible] to him I was glad [illegible] O mama, Jess has ben [illegible] and I am his agin. He [illegible] I am a reel dame an he wants to do everythin an everybody to pleas me. Dairy Ill call it some day even if there is more work tomorrer. Gee!

By Lily Wandel

GOODBYE GRANDMOTHER [illegible] "I'LL [illegible] I FIND HER"

A Real Treasure

"Now, Richard—this is fine," [illegible]

Richard closed his watch with a snap [illegible] ready to leave.

A Violent Protest

"We [illegible] grandmother," they [illegible]

[illegible] her——

"Oh, grandmother," began Richard impatiently [illegible] is just a [illegible] Ruth [illegible] from [illegible] was a [illegible] without a cent and [illegible] any [illegible] for sewing or [illegible] but she could [illegible] it. And she [illegible] just a wee foot [illegible] she had to earn her bread and butter. Is the [illegible] stage folks in [illegible]

[illegible] answered grandmother [illegible] I don't [illegible] we [illegible] Beasley [illegible] her [illegible] asked her to go away and——

Richard jumped up excitedly. "I'll find her."

"Goodbye, grandmother," he said [illegible] miserably, "I'll tell you this [illegible] I'm going to marry her as soon as I find her."

"When you go to the landing, [illegible] would you mind opening the door and peeping in—there's a treasure there for somebody. I'll wait here."

His brain was in a whirl of [illegible] and distracted plans; he flew down the stairs, bumped into the [illegible] his balance. He had no intention of [illegible] the door to humor the old lady, but his fingers caught on the knob for support and open flew the door and out stepped a [illegible] creature, golden-haired [illegible] who flung her soft arms around his neck and [illegible] want me [illegible] Richard?"

In His Arms

He gathered her in his arms, [illegible] the stairs [illegible] at a time [illegible] then faced grandmother [illegible] "I found the treasure," and the next minute his arms were around the old lady.

"There's [illegible] the [illegible] lady [illegible] seated in her [illegible] when the [illegible] through [illegible] I said I [illegible] Ruth who [illegible] I just made your [illegible] And when I [illegible] and spoke to her why—I fell in love with her too [illegible] Well, we hatched the plan out together, Ruth and I and your mother! "And the clock?" Richard is [illegible] to ask [illegible] apart after he is married [illegible] if I [illegible] it [illegible] run and when grandmother heard that she cried for [illegible]

"It's going to bring you lots of peace and happiness," she said [illegible] to Ruth, "for I know. Some day he'll be telling his grandchildren about the treasure in the clock and they'll be horribly bored. I hope [illegible] never did [illegible] it?"

Just How Long Is "Forever"?

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1922, by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

THE thoughtful ones do not readily say that word, "Forever." It's a long word—a fearsome one. It calls up overwhelming visions. Opens staggering vistas. It dazes the imaginative—as the sea does when they in the lifting, falling, dark blue waste of its waves far from land, try to see it in fancy in its immensity over the whole wide world. The thoughtful girl gets a distinct shock the first time her lover says, "I will love you FOREVER!" And she thinks confusedly that forever is a long time and is that humanly possible. It is a trail without [illegible] a song that never dies out, a story with no finis [illegible] without a destination. It is like looking, while you lie on your back in the lovely beauty of a hayfield, into the baffling, bottom[illegible] of the sky. [illegible] "Forever" from [illegible] earthly an[illegible] orage of a human love.

But thoughtless Summer-lovers will go on through that same forever making a light litany of that word. They will say it with fervor, and believe it with passion. They will meet strangers, knowing nothing of each other's homes and real dispositions and dreams, at a Summer camp where moonlight and wide lake water the silent canoe, the tall pines, the flower-embroidered meadows, old fences velvety with dark green moss, the white farmhouse, the rambles with the collie that lives there, will all conspire with Love with his morning face and his wings dusted with pink and gold! Conspire to bind them [illegible] that SOMETIMES rarely do, but most times never last, because they are built on mist and cobweb. And THEN they dare, the two poor children, to sing the song without an end, the Forever song, to say with Kipling, "Love like ours can NEVER die!" Yet [illegible] how [illegible] they are?!!!! NEVER and FOREVER. They play with them.

This is in Summertime. And yet by the time the first snow flies, so far have they flown from each other, so deep have they gotten into their own affairs at home, so well can they do without each other, so forgotten are their vows, their letters, their pain at parting, so really strangers were they to each other—and didn't know it—that when they meet suddenly, face to face in the gray dusk of a Winter street, she hurrying along in furs and sophisticated little hat, he in muffler and ulster and a stiff collar (she had never seen him in any but a soft one) they did not recognize each other, for a perfectly good minute! And when at last they did—they smiled and bowed in some embarrassment and passed on!

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

MY EYES WERE WET BUT MY HEART WAS WARM

I OPENED the envelope and found [illegible] friends [illegible] To the venture [illegible] doesn't [illegible] from Aunt May and [illegible] nephews.

My eyes were wet but my heart was warm as I gave the card to Betty [illegible] while I [illegible] and [illegible]

"Miss May [illegible] You know Ralph Lacy [illegible] helps and [illegible] of the [illegible] Wayne Parkinson, adopted Miss May as an aunt [illegible] boys, and—I don't blame her. They're splendid."

"I know they are," said Betty simply. "Mr. Lacy telephoned and explained about the flowers. He asked me if I had plenty of vases or if I'd like a few bowls sent up. He was so charming that I asked him to supper. So he's bringing Miss May and Mr. Parkinson. I didn't want your first evening to be dreary. Anne—I think you're a brave, fine woman, and I promise I won't make things harder for you——"

Betty Fled

Suddenly then Betty fled, her words dying on her lips. For a moment I thought she had been trying to promise that she wouldn't make things any harder for me than she could help. Then I realized that she had been thinking of me, not of herself as she spoke. Trying to shake off the depression, all this concern is beginning to cause me, I rummaged about until I found an apron in the little bag I'd carried.

I was reminded of the old days when Betty used to come down to the studio apartment Jim and I sublet from Tom Mason. It made me long for those days with an ache of loneliness that told me how terrible the emptiness of Betty's heart must be. But her longing can never be assuaged, and no matter how hard it is [illegible] wait for Jim. I know he's [illegible] the same day. [illegible] found their [illegible] I was setting the [illegible] very tender toward [illegible] too, seemed [illegible] great gentle[illegible]

Neither of [illegible] words. Yet I [illegible] better being [illegible] and happy [illegible] when she had [illegible] Terry Winston [illegible] to her.

Doorbell Rang

We were still in [illegible] aration in which Tony [illegible] his part, when the door[illegible]

"Please, Anne, it's [illegible] be maid now," [illegible] lant as if this weren't the first time in her life she's been too poor to afford a maid.

I went to the door [illegible] May rosy with [illegible] by her [illegible] of whom been a [illegible]

"Welcome to our city!" cried Park, dancing a little jig around Miss May, who dropped all office formality and hugged me with a right good will. "I've an extra special appetite with me, so if you'll take me out and introduce me to the lady cook I'll elect myself assistant and help prepare the viands we've brought to this [illegible] age party."

With a cheerful awareness that all this picnic casualness would be good for Betty, I led the way right out to the kitchen and performed introductions and doled out aprons and tasks almost in a breath. Miss May seemed almost awe-struck at Betty's regal beauty, which showed through her gauntness for the first time since her sad return. And Betty was warned and pleased by the admiration in every move the little wisp of a woman made.

EVIDENCE OF ETHER

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

A CALIFORNIAN asks what evidence there is that ether pervades the universe. Well, there never was anything but circumstantial evidence of the existence of the "ether," and now Einstein seems to have demolished even that. So, if Einstein is right, we can no longer claim that there is any evidence for the ether.

We [illegible] speak of the ether as [illegible] reality because [illegible] light, as a wave [illegible] an imponderable medium [illegible] the suppositious all-pervading ether.

But Einstein says there is no need for an ether to carry light, or gravitation, or anything else. [illegible] long known that [illegible] ether was a [illegible] at [illegible] the various uses to which it was put, [illegible] properties, or qualities, were ascribed to it. It was, for instance, represented from one point of view as almost infinitely rigid and from another point of view as almost infinitely rare.

But the knockout blow was dealt by an actual experiment. This experiment was tried at the Chicago University of Michelson and Morley as long ago as 1887. Its object was to see if the motion of the earth through the ether could be detected by its effect on the velocity of light.

It was argued that when the earth was moving toward the source of light the velocity of the light should appear to be increased, and when the earth was moving away from the source the velocity should appear to be decreased. The result of the experiment, however, showed that the velocity was not changed in the least, whether the earth ran with the light or against it. In each case the light arrived with the same speed.

Now, for years afterward this curious result was treated somewhat as if scientists regarded it as a [illegible] joke that nature had played upon the experimenters. At [illegible] nobody saw, or if he saw had the courage to say, that the experiment had shown the ether to be [illegible] creation of the scientific [illegible]

The ether theory stood [illegible] tremendously strong [illegible] ments, and almost the whole force of the scientific world was actively or passively engaged in the defense. Then suddenly Einstein drew from the result of the Michelson-Morley experiment the logical conclusion that there was no other, because not only had the extremely exact measurements employed in that experiment failed to detect its existence, but his relativity theory [illegible] of light did not need to be conveyed by any such medium as the ether was supposed to be.

According to his theory [illegible] there is no absolute velocity except that of light. The velocity of light is the same for all bodies, no matter how fast or how slow, or in what direction, they may be moving. But if something else should try to outstrip light it would fail, the velocity of light being the speed limit.

Einstein doesn't offer a physical [illegible] light. [illegible] He [illegible] at them by the way of mathematics, but the mathematics he employs [illegible] that can be made evident by diagrams or be truly illustrated by [illegible] categories drawn from actual human experience.

A PRACTICAL STYLE

3846. The prevailing "sleeveless," and overblouse fashions make a garment of [illegible] and generally useful and [illegible] able. As illustrated [illegible] may have this with the [illegible] sleeve, or with a [illegible] sleeve, on which [illegible] "peasant" puff may be arranged. Besides the variety [illegible] the neck line affords [illegible] tunity for choice. [illegible] becoming to round [illegible] necks, the boat style [illegible] plump youthful forms [illegible] oval line will be attractive for more mature figures.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 2¾ yards of 44-inch material, with or without puff. The puff requires ⅛ yard of 44-inch material.

FOR PORCH OR KITCHEN WEAR

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 5 yards of 40-inch material. To make vest, collar and cuffs of contrasting material requires 1¼ yards. The width at the foot is 2⅛ yards.

LAND O' DREAMS

NEW SERIES BY NOTED PSYCHO-ANALYST

By Hereward Carrington, Ph. D.

Noted Writer and Author of Works on Psycho-Analysis

PROBABLY every reader of this article has read the two famous books of Lewis Carroll—"Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass." He may have read them when a child; but if he will re-read them now, from the point of view of modern dream psychology and analysis, he will be surprised to find how accurate they are, and what a light they throw upon the whole dream problem.

Let us take just a few illustrations from these famous books, by way of showing this. It will be at once evident that the author has chosen for the material of his dream stories just the sort of material with which a child's mind would be stocked.

A meadow, a rabbit, etc., are the opening events and person[illegible] which Alice meets [illegible] Alice herself is the central and most important personage—the heroine—who observes and enacts all the principal events and roles and around whom, all the chief characters revolve.

The manner in which scenes change and glide one into another is also very characteristic of the dream world. Thus, the little shop is transformed into the boat on the river and the knitting needles in Alice's hands into oars, only to be retransposed into needles again later, at the time the river insensibly changes back again into the little dark shop. The egg changes, as she approaches it, to Humpty Dumpty. The heads of the red and white queens vanish from her lap without her knowing it—they are just "gone."

The rushes which Alice picked in the stream began to fade and vanish in her hands as soon as she had picked them—"these, being dream rushes, melted away almost like snow, as they lay in heaps at her feet, but Alice hardly noticed this, there were so many other curious things to think about." Even the looking-glass thinned and admitted her passage—when she tried to push her way through it. In this way she entered the looking glass world.

Nearly everything in the book is "personalized"—that is to say, is given life and personality by the dreamer, so much so that nearly everything talks. Even time is personified: "If you knew [illegible] as I do, you wouldn't talk about wasting it. It's him." Similarly, the leg of mutton is introduced to Alice, and gets up and bows.

At various times, mention is made of running and flying at incredible speed through the air—the flying dream! When she falls down the rabbit hole, this is the falling dream! The Jabberwock [illegible] is written backwards; the mirror world is all turned round. Sleeping, dreaming, vanishing, etc., are often alluded to throughout the book.

These are only a few points which occur to the mind, showing us that a study of the "Alice" books, from the point of view of modern dream psychology, would be well worth while—since they are filled with suggestive and interesting material.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

THE STORY TO DATE

Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth, is at Monte Carlo while the great war is on. With him is his friend, Atilio Castro, and other acquaintances. The prince, on returning to Villa Sirena, finds everything changed owing to the war. He announces, to the amazement of his hearers, that he is ruined. Castro smilingly remarks that he would be content with one-tenth of the remains. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall enter their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Delille. The Prince says he will not receive her. The story reverts to the marriage of the Prince's father and mother and the son's early training. His father dies and his mother marries again. He hears his income will be cut off on account of the war, so he sells his yacht and retires to his villa at Monte Carlo.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown.

THE soil of the Alps amounts to little for it power of production; it is the situation that gives it its value. And the native has grown rich selling by the yard, the sunlight, the azure of the Mediterranean, the orange color of the mountains and the dazzling glory of the cluods at sunset, the shelter of the distant rock which turns aside the icy breeze of the mistral, like a screen.

"The fortress you see over there practically belonged to us at one time," he went on, pointing to the Castle of Monaco. "For a century and a half it had a Spanish garrison."

In a few words he recalled the history of the little country, which came into being around a little harbor. Semitic sailors gave it the name of Melkar—the Phoenician Hercules—and the name gradually changed into the present one, Monaco. The Guelphs and Ghibellines of Genoa fought for possession of its castle, until a Grimaldi, disguised as a monk, entered the enclosure by surprise, and opened the gates to his friends, making the ancient Hercules Harbor a family estate for all time. "This friar, sword in hand," continued Don Marcos, "is the one that figures on both sides of the coat of arms of Monaco."

Saved by Gambling.

Long ago the sailors of Monaco had plied their trade of the corsair, and their flag was even used to give distinction to the pirates of other countries. But these adventurous days passed and the tiny principality had the greatest difficulty in getting a living out of the barren soil.

"They were so poor!" Toledo went on. "They were obliged to keep up the show and pomp of a court, since in a small state where all are neighbors, it is necessary to exaggerate formality, in order that the Prince may hold people's respect.

"The same expense must be defrayed as in a large nation for the maintenance of courts, administrative offices, and even a diminutive army for internal safety. And the whole principality produces nothing save lemons and olives . . . . You can see for yourself how poor and how hard pressed they must have been, not knowing how to raise funds, especially since under the rule of Florestan I., the grandfather of the present Prince, there was an attempted revolution owing to the decree of the sovereign that all the olives of the country should be pressed only in the mills of his estate.

Prince Michael and Castro packing to flee from the Terrorists

"For Monaco was isolated within French territory, with its sovereignty clearly recognized; but a sovereignty that embraced only a single city on a rocky height, a small harbor, and a little surrounding land overgrown with parasitical vegetation; about as much ground as a peaceful citizen might cover in a morning walk. How was the tiny state to be maintained?

What a Transformation

"It was saved by gambling. Don't imagine, as some people do, that the idea originated with the ruler of Monaco. Many German princes had had recourse to the same enterprise to support their domains. It is a German invention; but gambling on the shore of the Mediterranean, under a Winter sun that seldom fails, is quite a different thing from gambling in Central Europe. At first the business was unsuccessful. And then the Corniche Railway was put through, placing Monaco on the road between Paris and Italy, and all the gamblers and idlers of the world came flocking here within a few years. What an amazing transformation!

"That was the beginning of Monte Carlo. Opposite the rock of Monaco, forming the other side of the harbor, there was an abandoned plateau only some fifty years ago. And this abandoned plateau, in some ten or twelve years, was converted into Monte Carlo, the great city of the world fame, leaving in obscurity and more or less in oblivion, on the heights opposite historic Monaco, which at present is merely one of its suburbs.

A Russian Prince of Fabulous Wealth and Some Friends Bind Themselves to Bar All Women From Lives

"Monte Carlo has grown so that it extends from one end of the principality to the other; the entire national territory is covered with houses, and each year it overflows still farther beyond the boundary line. The French part is called Beausoleil. You have only to cross the square in front of the Casino, ascend the sloping gardens and mount a stairway to the Boulevard du Nord, to find one of the rarest sights in Europe.

"One sidewalk belongs to the Prince of Monaco, and the other, across the street, to the French Republic. The shopkeepers pay different taxes and obey different laws, according to whether their show windows are on the left or on the right.

Miracles of Roulette

"The miracles accomplished by roulette!" he continued. "The magic power of 'red and black!' They say the Casino is a marvel of poor taste, but the walls and ceilings are fairly covered with gold, as in a rich church. The theatre there is the first to produce operas that become famous throughout the world. The countless hotels are like palaces. Monte Carlo bristles with domes and turrets like an Oriental city. The streets seem like drawing rooms, with their scrupulously clean pavements. There isn't a trace of dirt. And think of the gardens!

"The Alps here form a wonderful screen; we live in a sunny shelter; almost a hothouse. But at times the mistral blows, and it is cold. I don't know how it is possible for all those tropical plants that are so fresh and luxuriant, and all the plants that originate in a climate as hot as an oven, to live. The poor old olive trees must be as amazed as I myself at finding themselves in such company. 'Trente et Quarante' must be a powerful fertilizer! I'm sure that if the gambling were to stop, all this tropical vegetation would vanish like a dream."

"And what a transformation in the people!" continued the Colonel. "Notice the crowd some Sunday; all 'gentlemen,' all equally well dressed. The girls here copy what they see worn by the elegant society women; and imagine how many of the latter come here! You never see a beggar, or a man in rags. To be born here means something; one's livelihood is assured.

"The Casino takes care of everyone; there is always a place for every citizen in the gambling rooms, in the gardens, or in the theatre; or if not, on the police force, in the administrative offices, or in the work of which the Prince is in charge, and he is paid with the money of the company. To achieve the dignity of being put in charge of a gaming table is the native's highest ambition. He may earn as much as a thousand francs a month besides the tips. And he ends his days in a little villa that he has built on the heights of Beausoleil, where he can look after his garden, with a view of the Casino below, the house of the dispenser of blessings. They all have to keep a silent tongue, and mind their own business.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver

Two Queer Little Mothers Meet One Sunny Day.

"WELL, well, good-morning, good neighbor!" laughed Mrs. Short-coated Beetle. "I suppose we're related. I take it from your dress you must be a beetle. Am I right?"

"Yes," she drawled, "I'm a beetle—Mrs. Bettle Beetle—also a short-coated beetle. But as to being a relative. I don't know about that. Are you living around here?"

"Well, I should say so," laughed Mrs. Short-coated Beetle. "I couldn't find a good place to lay my eggs, so I"——

"Now I know we are no relation," cried Mrs. Bettle Beetle. "Did I understand you to say that you lay eggs?"

"Indeed I do," laughed Mrs. Short-coated Beetle, "just like all of the beetle race do. Why, of course, I lay eggs. What a funny question to ask! But there, maybe you're just a young beetle and don't know any better, so forgive me if I answered sharply. I take it for granted that a beetle knows everything. Of course, one as young as you has lots to learn. Maybe you can tell me one thing. Is it a new fad or just a habit you have of curling your tail up over your back the way you do when you walk? Just a fad, I guess. I've never seen anything quite so funny. Excuse me for laughing." And Mrs. Short-coated Beetle laughed heartily.

"Hum!" drawled Mrs. Bettle Beetle. "I hate to spoil your fun, but I can't walk any other way. You see, that large ball turned up like a tail that you're laughing and poking fun at is filled with eggs."

"Filled with eggs!" exclaimed Mrs. Short-coated Beetle. "No wonder you walk like that! Why don't you come over to the ant-hill and lay them and rest your back? My, I should think you'd die, carrying them around with you. I love children, but if I had to lug the eggs around I'd never have any—too much trouble. No, I lay my eggs in ant-hills and let them hatch themselves."

"That may be all right for a short-coated beetle," said the other scornfully, "but as for beetles who carry their tails over their backs—well, I prefer keeping my eggs where I can take care of them. I must admit I enjoy the same privilege that you do, for I live with the ants, too. But none of them will ever have a chance to complain about my eggs being a burden, for I carry them right in this big ball-like part of my body, until they hatch."

"Good Morning, Good Neighbor."

"Foolish thing!" sighed Mrs. Bettle Beetle, and away she scooted to the ant-hill where she made her home.

They met a good many times after that. But neither one of them ever mentioned children or eggs, for they knew they could never agree on that subject.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky if You Are CALM

SOME adverse aspects function today, which are conducive to high nervous tension, excessive mental worry and erroneous intuitions—thus causing wrong decisions. Sudden changes of plans should be looked upon critically with a view to avoiding false moves.

This is a day above all others when calm should prevail, when speech should be circumspect and all aggressiveness should be checked. Hold your tongue—words spoken are like eggs broken. They can't be mended.

Take good care of yourself this day and be quiet. The nervous disorders to which you are subjected are more than likely to bring about a serious complication, unless you are more than cautious.

You should have a strong, robust body and an especially fine throat. The vocal organs are quite extraordinary. You should cultivate your voice if you have not already done so. Although you may not become a world-famed singer—this takes years of study—you can give yourself much pleasure in idle hours and bring much happiness to your friends.

Adelina Patti was born under your Zodiacal sign. Her glorious voice rang through the world and reached the hearts of those who were fortunate enough to have heard her. She is gone, but never to be forgotten.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

EMPRESS CATHERINE OF RUSSIA

IN 1744 a young girl was making a journey from her home in Germany to St. Petersburg. She was on her way to be betrothed to the Grand Duke Peter, the nephew of the Empress Elizabeth of Russia.

In the mind of this fifteen-year-old child was one thought. It was that she would some day be Empress of Russia.

She had been born in Stettin. Her father was an obscure and unimportant ruler of the principality of Anhalt-Zerbst in upper Saxony. Her mother was a hard-headed, scolding irritable woman. But she brought her daughter up beautifully, and educated her thoroughly.

In Military Uniform She Inspected Her Troops

So, when this young lady became the wife of the Grand Duke she immediately filled her position at court with dignity and distinction.

The marriage was not a happy one. Peter was but a year older than his bride. As his wife progressed in charm, beauty, tact and diplomatic shrewdness, he deteriorated into a stupid and at the same time vicious profligate. At times he appeared to be mentally deficient.

Catherine—for this girl was the famous Catherine of Russia—did all in her power to reform his drunken habits, but with no success. He insulted her in the most humiliating ways.

When Elizabeth died, in 1762, Catherine came into power.

Peter was now Emperor, but Catherine was the real ruler. Peter spent his nights in drinking and carousing. Catherine worked at the difficult task of mastering statesmanship.

Before long this ambitious young woman had built up such a strong personal party of her own that with little trouble she seized the throne from her worthless husband and ruled the Russian empire absolutely and entirely alone.

It was during Catherine's reign that Russia grew to be the great power she was. And it was due in a great measure to the love and devotion which Catherine gave to her work. She considered her subjects her children. Russia was hers. She introduced culture, started the opera, and imported works of art.

As a military leader and tactician Catherine revealed the talents of a great general. Combined with this was her fervent personal interest in her soldiers.

It was no unusual sight to see the beautiful Empress, booted and spurred, in the uniform of a cavalry officer, inspecting her troops. She saw personally to the comfort of their equipment, investigated the food which was served them, and encouraged them with the magic of her personality.

Despite her laxity in private life and her sometimes cruel public deeds, Catherine is remembered as a great woman and a great ruler. She extended the Russian empire to great proportions. She steered her ship of state with accuracy, wisdom and courage for thirty-four years. Her hand left the helm only when death claimed her suddenly. She was stricken with apoplexy, and died in a few hours.

REFINISHING FURNITURE

By Loretto C. Lynch

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Appertaining to Household Management

"ABOUT to be married, we have been looking at the furniture shown in the shops having sales. We have very little money to spend and have set our hearts on white furniture for the bedroom, partly because it is rather a dark room in the only apartment we can afford. But we find it much beyond what we can afford to pay. Would you advise our looking in the second-hand shops?"

Were I in your place I'd pick out the pieces you want in a substantial golden oak finish. There is a paint and varnish remover which acts like magic. Completely clean off the oak finish and paint it white. The painting of furniture white and finishing it in eggshell white, washable, is not an easy job. So you might look about for a cabinet maker who would do it for you in his spare time evenings. I just had some done and the man charged ten dollars for finishing three pieces.

If you want it particularly attractive, have a design stencilled on in color. A pink rose wreath with pretty pink bow is always appropriate for this type of furniture.

If your room is dark, perhaps it might be better to have a yellow rose stencilled and added to the brightness of the room by using crisp white Swiss curtains with yellow overdrapes.

You will find it an economy to have the top of dresser, chiffonier and dressing table fitted with plate glass cover. One beautiful linen or lace cover may be put on and, with the addition of the glass, left indefinitely.

ARE YOU A MEDDLER?

LET OTHERS PADDLE ALONE

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls.

THE old saying, "Paddle your own canoe," always suggests more than its evident advice to make your own way in the world and not expect other folks to solve your problems and carry your burdens. It implies another thought of almost equal importance, and that is the need of letting other folks paddle their canoes.

No one save only you can paddle your boat up the stream of life. You have to balance your own cargo—to chart you channel among the rocks and pitfalls—to put your own energy and skill into balancing the paddle. Then why not leave other people free to chart their own cargoes and handle their own propeller—be it oar, paddle or a magnificent mechanical contrivance?

Surely you have dealt with at least one situation in which well-intentioned meddlers took up your time, frazzled your nerves and in addition to irritating and delaying you, had the bad psychological effect of making you a little uncertain of what had seemed to clear before.

Think of some of the cases where kindly intentioned meddlers—they always "mean well"—have done infinite and perhaps irreparable damage.

Meddlers are often gossips. They are frequently sub-consciously malicious folks who can't bear to see others happy. They are sometimes vain creatures who like to feel that their advice and aid is needed to make their friends successful and wise.

Most of us have enough to do to make our lives clean and sane and efficient and fine. We are called on too often for aid that we must be ready to give in such a way that we won't fail those who need us nor yet burden other souls with the weight of our dominance.

Paddle your own canoe. And if a fellow traveler calls to you for a line or a bit of advice about rocks or rapids ahead, be courteous and helpful—but don't try to steer him off his course. He may have a destination far from yours, and if you tempt him with loud praise of the beauty of your way, he may weakly set off for a port where none of the things he longs for can be found. If you criticise the stream on which he is setting out, you may divert him from his Port o' Dreams.

Don't meddle. You may destroy the pattern of a life by your awkwardness. Your own life is yours to make—or mar. And your neighbor is the architect of his fate. Leave him free and untrammelled to reckon with life.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

These are the words of Agis II. (427-399 B. C.), King of Sparta, to one who reminded him of the strength of the enemy.

Speaking of the biennial elections of 1788, Fisher Ames (1758-1808), a member of Congress, said they were "a security that the sober, second thought of the people shall be law."

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Ward Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Springfield, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved a splendid medicine for me before my fourth child was born. With the first three I had been sick and weak, and had sick headaches twice a week. I couldn't keep enough food down to do me any good, and my work was left undone many a time. My sister-in-law told me to take the Vegetable Compound when I began to have the same old dreadful sickness and headaches and was so worn out. Since then I have only had two headaches, had a good appetite and scarcely lost a meal. I have a fine, healthy baby girl who has never had a sick day. The nicest part is that I am healthy, too. It did me a lot of good, and if I should ever have another baby I will take your medicine at once."—Mrs. BESSIE WARD, 1027 Park Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system.

New York Market Irregular With Firm Undertone After Making Strong Start

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Is business booming? The American Woolen Company has been so swamped with orders for Fall goods that its customers are being "rationed." In certain important departments, orders have been received for several times the total capacity of the plants.

Prices were marked up an average of about 15 per cent., but this manifestly has not frightened clothing manufacturers. The trade is quite confident that business this Fall will be excellent.

Let us hope that those who supply us with our clothing will not assume that we will eagerly pay any fancy prices they care to name. For my own part, I have been taking advantage of the recent special sales, because it is inevitable that the higher prices which have ruled for wool and cotton and for piece goods will mean higher prices for finished goods by and by.

This is a good time to buy next Winter's supplies.

Whenever I write on the subject of salaries Uncle Sam becomes richer, so many letters come pouring in.

The most interesting one received following publication of this week's articles on high salaries has come from A. H. Ulm of Washington, D. C. Says Mr. Ulm:

"Your article on high salaries reminds me of a good story I've never seen in print.

"Several years ago Fuller E. Callaway of La Grange, Ga., outstanding figure in cotton manufacturing in the South, was employing a man for an executive position in his organization. He talked with him for an hour or more about what the man might do, and so on, when he finished the prospective employe asked:

"'Now, what about the salary I am to receive?'

"'Why, I never discuss that when employing a man like you,' Mr. Callaway replied. 'I'll say this, however: The bigger the salary paid you the better I'll be pleased, for the greater will be the profits made on your work. You will be paid just what you are worth, and I would much prefer that it be $10,000 than $5,000.'

"Callaway, himself, the head of numerous corporations he organized, is perhaps the highest paid man in the South."

A suggestion for out of town folks: If you intend visiting New York, make hotel reservations well ahead of time. Many visitors lately have had to tramp for hours before finding a room.

I think I have tried a different hotel restaurant every day this week and not once have I been able to get a table until after quite a wait.

ARCADIAN REPORT FOR YEAR IS GIVEN

Arcadian Consolidated Mining Co. report for 1922 shows receipts of $83,684, disbursements, $78,368. Cash on hand, $8516. Of the receipts, $27,416 was received from assessment and $12,191 from sale of treasury stock. President Robert H Shields says: "While developments on the new Arcadian vein have proven its commercial value, continued depression in copper interfered with certain well-defined plans for financing the company." Matter of further financing of Arcadian will be taken up by directors. It is said to be unlikely an assessment will be called.

COPPERS MOVE TO NEW TOPS FOR YEAR

Week-end trading on the New York Stock Exchange resulted in the market developing irregularity with a firm undertone after making a strong start. A number of coppers moved to new tops for the year.

Among the dozen or more fresh 1923 tops recorded were included Baldwin, Cerro de Pasco, Inspiration, du Pont, General Motors, Kennecott, Mother Lode, Utah, Marland, Cosden, Iron Products and Texas Company.

Railway Steel Spring, Royal Dutch and American Beet Sugar were heavy.

Early realizing sales caused recessions of approximately a point in California Petroleum, U. S. Alcohol and Atlantic Gulf, but the general list continued upward.

Good buying power was noted in the merchandising. Motor, motor accessory and equipment groups, gains of a point or more being recorded by May Department Stores, Brown Shoe, Lima Locomotive, New York Air Brake and Crucible Steel.

Rails also were in better demand, Louisville & Nashville and Ann Arbor preferred gaining a point each and New York Central, Reading and Norfolk & Western recording large fractional gains.

Eastern Steamship at Record Top in Boston

Coppers reflected the improved tone in New York. Calumet & Hecla was up 6 at 316 to a new 1923 high. Point or more gains were made by Ahmeek, Calumet & Arizona, Isle Royale, Mohawk, Osceola, Old Dominion and Quincy. United States Smelting, Arizona Commercial, and Copper Range, up fractions, were at new 1923 highs.

Amoskeag added a point at 95 and Waltham Watch preferred warrants up 2 to 5. Mexican Investments took on 1⅝ at 14¼. Eastern Massachusetts preferred B was off 2 at 55.

DEMAND STERLING AT TOP SINCE '19

At New York on the week-end, by selling at $4.69¼, the British pound sterling established a new high record since March 20, 1919, at which time the government "peg" was withdrawn from the market.

BANK CLEARINGS IN BOSTON UP

Bank clearings in leading cities for week ending February 15, a holiday week, as reported to Bradstreet's, aggregate $6,405,107,000, a loss of 11.1 per cent. from last week, but an increase of 16.1 per cent. over this week last year. New York shows a gain of 9.4 per cent. over last year. Thirty-six cities reporting show gains over last year while only five exhibit losses. Chicago reports a gain of 1.4 per cent. and Boston 1.3

FOOD PRICES FOR WEEK ARE HIGHER

Bradstreet's food index number, based on the wholesale prices per pound of thirty-one articles used for food, is $3.40, comparing with $3.36 last week and $3.13 for the week ending February 16, 1922.

Income Tax Query Should Be Sent Immediately

Your income tax query should be sent immediately. State papers must be in by March 1. Federal papers by March 15. Services of an expert in accountancy are placed by the Boston American's financial department at convenience of its readers to solve problems without charge. Mail inquiries to Attorney Oliver A. Wyman, No. 150 Congress street, Boston. He is one of Massachusetts' leading authorities on income tax details. Send stamped envelope.

BOSTON BROKERS' MARKET VIEWS

Inviting though the aspect of the market may be and logical as may seem an embracing long position, we deprecate promiscuous bidding for favorites, especially on borrowed funds. Corrective stiffening of money rates is liable at any time to produce a good reaction.—Tucker, Anthony & Co.

We consider that the optimistic position may still be adhered to, but we also believe that this optimism should be tempered by the realization that we are steadily approaching the final period, not necessarily of business activity and profits, for these should continue well through the year, but in all probability of the market discounting of those profits.—Hayden, Stone & Co.

The market seems to be following the trend of commodity and finished goods prices, for the trend has been unmistakably upward for some time—more noticeably in the past fortnight. Likewise, with the market improvement, discrimination in purchases is fading away, stocks both good and bad being carried in the upswing. Again we advise conservatism in view of the advance. —F. L. Milliken & Co.

The market should continue its strength and activity, and we see little prospects of an immediate change.—Hornblower & Weeks.

Danger signals have not yet been hung out, but when they are, in the shape of flurries in the money rate, with the rate staying persistently above 6 per cent. we would suggest that holders bring their wares to market and let someone else own them.—Schirmer, Atherton & Co.

If the railroad reports for the month of January, which will shortly appear, meet the expectations of those who have been following the car loadings for the month it is not unlikely that considerable enthusiasm may develop in the rail stocks.—Elmer H. Bright & Company.

STATE STREET NOTES

GLOUCESTER will receive proposals until 4 p. m., February 21, for discount of a temporary revenue loan of $150,000, dated February 26 and maturing February 1, 1924.

AMERICAN Hide & Leather Company increases wages 8 per cent. at Lowell tanneries, affecting about 800 men.

FINAL figures show United States Worsted shareholders subscribed to all but $375,000 of the $2,494,000 new securities. Common is 16 bid in outside market.

BOSTON Stock Exchange membership held in the name of E Howard George has been posted for transfer to Malcolm N. Jackson of Jackson & Harris.

UNITED FRUIT reports operating costs have been carefully studied and very satisfactory reductions have been shown in all departments. Improved wharf, railway and agricultural machinery has been installed during the year.

LAKE COPPER production, unless there is a change for better in labor situation, may soon fall short of demand. Some men are being brought into the district, but labor movement out to industrial centres continues.

SINCE resumption of operation September 1, 1922, following strike, Pacific Mills has been producing and selling goods at highest rate in its history. Profits are reported at rate of over $400,000 a month, or more than 12 per cent. a year on its $40,000,000 stock.

GRATIOT shaft, toward which these drifts are running, has reached the fourteenth level and sinking has been suspended until a plat is cut. Drifting to the south will then be started.

EASTERN Manufacturing made substantial progress in 1922 in cutting down floating debt, reduction being about $200,000 for all companies combined. This year, if business holds as at present, it is planned to cut borrowings in two.

GREENFIELD Tap & Die for 1922 showed 28 per cent. increase in sales over figures for the previous year.

GENERAL Baking Company for 1922 shows net of $4,701,422 after charges and federal taxes, against $2,182,495 in 1921.

ATLAS Tack by April expects to have machinery in its leased Cleveland plant moved into new St. Louis plant.

PERSONAL TONE GIVEN CONCERT BY GIDEON

By ZOE FABER

How do you take your concerts, personally conducted or more or less wandering around by yourself? If you are a strong advocate of the latter, we recommend to you one that took place last night at Jordan Hall under the personal guidance of Henry Gideon.

Just how Mr. Gideon got all his information as to how much and what to say to an audience, we don't know—and anyway, that is his secret. He does, though.

CONFIDENTIAL NOTE.

What he did have to tell his audience was in that delightful vein of speaking that is the "between you and me" sort that is too hard to bother to resist.

When Mr. Gideon was speaking, the impression was that it was, after all, his evening. Then the men began to play the things that he had been chatting to you about—and then you were sure that they were the thing and he was only incidental. Not that it mattered in the least, for it was a clever arrangement that offset both speaker and players.

FOR SIMMONS FUND.

Under Augusto Vannini, the Boston Symphony Ensemble made the curious dance forms and striking rhythms that were the subject of Mr. Gideon's remarks, very vivid.

There are going to be two more of these concerts—February 21 and 28, Wednesday evenings, and if you missed the first one try the others and see if you don't like the "personal" note that there is in these concerts that are being given for the benefit of the Simmons College Endowment Fund. They are splendid.

HARPIST PLAYS OWN WORK AT SYMPHONY

By ZOE FABER

Carlos Salzedo, harpist, playing his own composition, "Enchanted Isles," was the outstanding figure of the fifteenth Symphony program, Mr. Monteux conducting.

Mr. Salzedo is far more interesting as a harpist than he is as a composer and there is much more pleasure in hearing him play the works of other composers for his instrument.

This particular work is dedicated to the memory of Claude Debussy and reminds one strongly of the trend of thought of the latter, except that there is lacking the same spark, that has placed Debussy's name high in the annals of composers.

William Flood Dead

Canton, Feb. 17.—William Flood, son of Chief John H. Flood, is dead at his home on Pierce Place after an illness of a few days. He served overseas during the World War and the funeral Monday morning will be conducted by the American Legion. He is survived by his widow, a ten months old baby, his parents, two sisters and one brother, all of Canada.

Church Notes

The Rev. Dr. Robert Watson of New York will be installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Berkeley street and Columbus avenue, Monday evening. The Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church, will preach the sermon.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Beaver of Rochester, N. Y., will be one of the speakers before the Boston Baptist Bible School Convention at its thirtieth annual session Thursday at the Baptist Church, Malden.

* * *

The February meeting of the Boston Baptist Workers' Union will be held in Ford Building Monday evening, with an address by Professor H. K. Rowe on "Liberty and Fraternity."

* * *

* * *

"Russian Night" will be observed in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, on Sunday night. George Sommaripa, formerly of the Russian army, will make an address on "Russia—My Country." A Russian male trio will sing Russian national songs and several of the masterpieces of modern Russian church music will be sung by the parish choir.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: In the Ford Manual in answer No. 136 under the caption (can the engine be run with the generator disconnected from the battery?) it says to ground the generator from the terminal to one of the dust cover screws in the yoke. Could you please explain to where the yoke with the dust cover screws is or in other words where to put the other end of the wire and also whether I should remove the cut out and leave the ammeter wire disconnected? I have the battery out for storage and wish to run my overhauled engine in slowly before putting the battery in for the coming season. I thank you in advance for any information you may be able to give me. C. L. B.
Mattapan, Mass.

Run a wire from the terminal of the generator to any ground on the motor, preferably the screw on the yoke which holds the dust cover over the valve stems, as this would be the nearest point. You can ground this wire to any nut or bolt on the motor. It is not necessary to remove the cut out or leave the ammeter wire disconnected.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: Please answer the following through your column. What is the correct method of timing the spark in a Reo in a Ford? No marking on flywheel of Reo. When should the spark occur? Reo does not knock at all, not bothered with carbon, but does not seem to have compression. What would you suggest? Thank you. M. H. P.
Shrewsbury, Mass.

If there are no markings on the fly-wheel on a Reo you will have to follow the travel of the piston by using a wire through the spark plughole. Take No. 1 piston and have both valves closed on compression stroke, the breaker points should just begin to open with the spark fully retarded when the piston is about ⅛ of an inch past dead centre. Would suggest that you have your ground as this might hold your compression. For the "Ford" you should have no trouble as your cam-shaft gears are plainly marked. The word "Ford" on one of the the other gear with the word "Ford" across them. With the spark fully retarded the lug on the distributor should be about perpendicular.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I am an interested reader of your interesting column in the Boston American so perhaps you could help me. (1) I have a Ford 1917. It seems to run fairly good. Only one cylinder, No. 2, when I crank it, has a "kick" to it and there is hardly any compression. (2) Also when I shut my engine off when it starts to cool off the carburetor leaks all the time. I was told to shellac the float and it would be all right but I shellaced the float and it still continues to leak, if anything worse than ever. E. A. A.
East Brookfield, Mass.

(1) The compression is leaking past your piston rings. It will be necessary to fit oversized rings and possibly to have your cylinders rebored. Would advise putting a new carburetor on your car as the float is too heavy and a later model carburetor would give you better results any way.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I have a Ford chassis that I am fixing over for my young brother and would very much like to ask a few questions, is it possible, and if so how, to lessen the angle that the steering post makes with the frame, that is to drop the steering wheel closer to the seats? Also could I put a 1923 radiator on a 1916 frame? Thanking you in advance for this help, I remain L. R. S.
Newtonville, Mass.

Take a block of wood 5½ inches wide and the depth of the metal bracket on the steering post. Have this block two inches thick at the top and taper it to a half inch at the bottom, which makes it a V-shaped block. Then cut out a space 2½ inches wide so that the block will fit over the steering post and place the block of wood between the steering post bracket and the dash, boring holes for the bolts. This block of wood will allow your steering post to drop down. Of course you will have to loosen the bolts on the steering rod bracket on the frame and this will make the base end of this bracket drop down and you will have to insert washers or a steel block over this and use a longer bolt for the rear end. You can fit a 1923 radiator on your 1916 chassis.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: Will a Ford body fit a Dodge '17 car? Would fenders fit or where could I get one to fit? C. C.
Reading, Mass.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I have a Ford and I am overhauling the engine and putting in new push rods and valves and I would like to know how it is that you have to give more clearance than any other make of an engine? Please explain the reason. (2) I have used a micrometer on the diameter of the cylinder and I find it is large in the centre from .001 to .003 of an inch more than either end, and from .001 to .002 of an inch out of round in the bore. Please let me know if I should lap in the cylinder or if it is all right the way it is. A Constant Reader.

(1) This is due to the style of the cam shaft, the pattern of the cam which control's the lift of the valves, etc. (2) It will be necessary to rebore your cylinder and get oversized piston rings.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I have a 1917 4-cylinder Studebaker, which is timed so early that it kicks when I crank it with the spark fully retarded. Please tell me the right way to go about the job of retiming it, so that I can crank it safely. Also can I use straight side tires on clincher rims? Thanking you in advance. T. H. W.
Millinocket, Me.

The fly wheel is marked for timing. Turn to the mark u. d. c. 1-4 with No. 1 cylinder on compression, turn the fly wheel 1¼ inches past the marking d. c. with the spark retarded and the breaker points should begin to open. Set your cam on your distributor at this point. You can adjust this cam by removing the locking device so it will turn on the shaft. You can use straight side tires on clincher rims, but better get "bead fillers" to insure safety.

Dear Mr. Fix-It: I am a regular reader of the Boston American and have never asked a question. May I get your opinion on a trouble with a Ford car? It is a 1916 Ford touring car. All last Summer after standing a week in the barn when I tried to start it it would be almost impossible to turn the engine over enough to get a start although it is what I call easy if you jack up one hind wheel. I used a number of different oils (at one time). It seems to be a binding in the clutch and after the motor runs two minutes she starts very easy mostly always one-half turn on the crank. Starts it on either dry cells or magneto. It is a very good car as to speed, power and is low on gas, 25 to 28 miles on an actual test, but is very hard on oil. Will you tell me what is the matter with the clutch and how I can fix it? I do not know anything about the clutch, but if you were to direct me I could do it. I tried once to draw the oil off and put in kerosene and run it three minutes, but I had the same trouble afterwards. Thanking you, L. S.
Gardner, Mass.

Your trouble is due to gummy oil in your transmission or loose linkage on your clutch throw-out. Clean out your transmission case with kerosene and put in a good grade of light oil for cold weather and then adjust your clutch so that when your emergency lever is in neutral your clutch is fully thrown out and you can turn your motor over without causing your car to start ahead. It may be a good thing for you to leave your car in high speed when you stop the motor as this will make it easier starting in cold weather, as pulling back your emergency lever will force the oil ent and permit the clutch to move more easily.

POPULARITY OF STRAW HATS IS ON WANE

Washington, Feb. 17.—For the edification of a shivering United States it was announced by the Census Bureau that straw hats were 11.1 per cent. less popular in 1921 than they were in 1919.

If it interests you: "The value of products of establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of straw hats amounted to $28,617,000 in 1921, as compared with $32,187,000 in 1919."

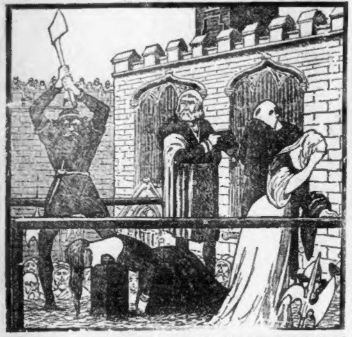
Lady Jane Was Beheaded

This Kind of Capital Punishment Abolished. Why Not ALL?

Copyright, 1923, Star Company



LADY JANE GREY BEHEADED IN THE TOWER OF LONDON

This month, 329 years ago, you would have witnessed this beheading had you stood with the eager, vulgar crowd inside the gloomy walls of the Tower of London, or with the other aristocratic crowd on the wall that overlooked the spot of the killing.

Lady Jane Grey, unfortunate great-granddaughter of Henry VII. of England, was the granddaughter of Mary, that sister of Henry VIII., whose story is told in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Most unfortunate of girls and of Queens, she was a marvel intellectually, knowing thoroughly Latin, Greek, French, Italian, with knowledge of Hebrew, Chaldee and Arabic when only sixteen years old.

A puppet in the hands of scheming men, her royal relative, King Edward VI., was persuaded to declare her his successor to the throne, cutting out Mary and the great Elizabeth.

Those were days of brutal, hideous punishment. Dozens of other heads, men and women, Dukes and Earls, fell in connection with the conspiracy that made her Queen, and of which she was perfectly innocent.

As a sample of brutality of those times the historian says, casually, in passing:

> "On the death of Edward VI., when the crowning of poor Lady Jane Grey was published in London, a vintner's boy boldly raised a cry for Queen Mary, deprived of her birthright. First they nailed that boy's ears to the pillory, and the next day they cut off both his ears."

Cutting off the head of an unfortunate, beautiful, talented girl through no fault of her own, slicing off the ears of a child for a boyish prank—that was all part of "capital punishment supposed to diminish crime."

In those days counterfeiters were boiled alive in oil. If a man offended the King or the Queen, three words, "TO THE TOWER," meant that his life was ended.

There were scores of different crimes, such as the stealing of trifling objects, that were punshed with death. Hence the expression, "As well be hung for a sheep as for a lamb." It meant, "You might as well steal a sheep, for if you steal only a lamb you will be hanged in court anyhow."

This picture, so striking and gruesome, is part of Mr. McCay's large page-wide cartoon, which, in tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser, illustrates a full-page editorial on capital punishment, its brutality, its foolishness, and the fact that it INCREASES CRIME INSTEAD OF DIMINISHING IT.

If the subject interests you, you will find it discussed, with definite statements of FACTS, in the editorial in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Demand Coal Embargo

Senator Walsh and Congressman Rogers Need Not Be Disturbed by Arguments of Canadian Commissioner

Both Senator Walsh and Congressman Rogers are demanding an embargo on coal to Canada. Senator Walsh goes further and demands that the government insist upon a rearrangement of the freight routing and of freight preference so that the coal can be shipped to New England more rapidly. Very good, indeed!

While we want to be very respectful to Mr. Charles A. Magrath of Ottawa, Canada, chairman of the International Joint Commission, we cannot help smiling at the argument which he makes in favor of continued shipments of coal to Canada. He says that Canada is shipping coal to the United States just as the United States is shipping it to Canada, and that we should continue to ship it because Canada is willing to continue to ship her coal; but the facts which he admits [illegible] namely, that the United States has been shipping more than four million tons of hard coal every year to Can- [illegible] that Central Canada has been drawing every year upon the United States for its bituminous supply of coal; that during the years 1919, 1920 and 1921 the average annual amount of coal, both anthracite and bituminous, sent by the United States into Canada, was about twenty million tons. [illegible] he says, with the lack of humor which we would expect [illegible] Englishman but not in a Canadian, "we have sent back [illegible] million tons."

The explanation of his attempt to set off the twenty million tons against the two million tons is that Canada has only one-twelfth the population of the United States. It is arithmetic beyond us. It must be higher mathematics somewhere beyond the fourth dimension.

We are inclined to believe that Senator Walsh and Congressman Rogers need not be disturbed by Mr. Magrath's argument. We hope that they will press the demand for an embargo on coal to Canada until the dangerous dearth of coal in this country has been overcome. Let us be generous with the stranger, but let [illegible] decent to our own.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

FUTURE MARRIAGES

By Bruno Lessing

A SINGLE State Senator of New York introduced twenty-five new bills to give women a new legal status. He must be a wonderful man to have so much confidence and courage. If all these bills become law, the marriage relation will be utterly changed. Those who do not like the new laws—if the bills are passed—will have to go to jail or move out of the State. New York may become a barren wilderness.

One of these bills gives the wife the right to demand wages for her household work. Another gives her the right to determine where she shall live, independent of her husband's decision. Another abolishes all privileges which arise from the marital relation, in regard to law suits; husband and wife, if this bill passes, can cheerfully sue each other.

Taking it all in all, marriage, under these laws, would be a cold-blooded business proposition. In this event it might be a good idea if young people who want to marry were first to organize a corporation, elect a board of directors and establish a constitution and by-laws.

In all these new bills no mention is made of love. Hitherto, love has always been the mainspring of marriage and has been the greatest force in the happy home. Perhaps, later on, this Senator will introduce a bill to abolish love.

Eternal Youth to Follow Death

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Eternal youth exists across the Styx, according to Sir A. Conan Doyle.

"On the 'other side' there is no childbirth, no love in the grosser sense," says Sir Arthur. "There is marriage in the sense of love, between man and wife. Children grow up at the same rate as here. Old people are rejuvenated to their prime.

"A man who has been a 'good fellow' here will find all people to whom he has done good turns waiting to welcome him, but the miserable money-grubber will have to wander alone.

Coal Driver to Blame

Editor Boston American:

Being in a position where I can conveniently use the splendid hot-water bottle which you are going to give to some reader of the Boston American, I take pleasure in adding my humble contribution to the very interesting controversy between your worthy paper and our esteemed State fuel administrator, the Hon. James J. Phelan.

Of course, Mr. Phelan did NOT violate the "Fourth Commandment" of the regulations covering the delivery of coal. Mr. Phelan did not DELIVER the three (3) tons of high-grade range coal to his own residence. He merely purchased it at $16 per ton.

The driver in the employ of the coal company from whom the purchase was made is the man who violated the "commandment" in question.

The driver should have refused to deliver more than the stipulated thirty-day supply of coal to the residence of the Hon. James J. Phelan. The refusal would probably have cost the man his job, but, of course, the common laborer must put up with such inconveniences if he is to be a model "law abiding citizen."

CARL E. CLIFFORD.

P. S.—Important—This letter is not sent out at the "personal expense" of James J. Phelan.

Not a 'Phone Girl

Editor Boston American:

Mrs. Marjorie Mahoney Jung, who is is said to have died in New York as a result of taking opium, was never an employe of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, as stated in some of the Boston newspapers. Furthermore, the three hundred and thirty operators of the Beach central office are somewhat disturbed over the statement that it was the custom for operators of that central office to visit Chinese restaurants before going home. In fairness to these young women, I wish you would print this correction.

M. G. KEATING,
Superintendent of Traffic.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls

Piano to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a large square piano which I shall be glad to give to anybody who would care to come and take it awy. T. M.

ED. NOTE—There have been one or two requests for a piano, but the size may be a difficulty, and I will hold your kind offer for a few days.

Sewing Machine to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a Singer sewing machine. It was my mothers, but I would like to give it to some other mother or exchange it or anything. MRS. J. K.

More Crutches

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a pair of crutches that I would be pleased to give to anyone who could use them. They are in good condition. M. C. F.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. These will be very useful, but wish you had told us the size.

Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am interested in the attached plea of Mrs. G. W. M. for baby clothes. If you will put me in touch with her, I shall be glad to see that she has the necessary assistance. I have also a pair of shoes size 5A and a pair of overshoes—both somewhat worn, but without holes; also union suits and undervests for a woman 34 or 36 bust. These need repairing, but I will provide the necessary equipment. A clever mother could make them over for he children.

C. M. E.

ED. NOTE—Several others have offered to assist Mrs. G. W. M., but there are many cases of urgent need for baby clothes, and I am taking the liberty of sending you the address of one of these instead. Also the address of a family much in need of the other things.

Wants Crib

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like to know if some kind reader has a crib and mattress to give away, as my husband has not worked steadily, and I already have a baby and expect another soon. I have no bed for the one that is here.

MRS. J. R.

Needs Oil Heater

Editor Helping Hand:

I am taking a poor woman with means into my humble home. I would be glad to get an oil heater or small prior stove. Would Mrs. L. E. sell at a low price or exchange for clothing.

MRS. F.T. W.

Great Men Don't Think Alike

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Great minds of the present generation are aptly described by Lord Riddell, famous newspaper proprietor and intimate political associate of David Lloyd George and Premier Bonar Law:

Clemenceau—A man of overwhelming energy, vitality, courage, ruthlessness, humor and quickness of perception.

Lloyd George—Not ruthless or bitter. Delighted in compromise. If an enemy was dining with him and he knew that he liked roast duck he would see that he had it, but M. Clemenceau would not dine with him at all.

Bonar Law—A practical man, cautious and critical. Not glowingly enthusiastic. To a certain extent he had greatness thrust upon him.

SIX MILLION DOLLARS AND THREE VERY WISE MEN

By Herbert Kaufman

THE New York Public Library needed six million dollars—a hopeful sign when the demand for information creates such deficit.

Rockefeller, Whitney and Harkness have furnished the funds. The country may also feel hopeful when its millionaires want the most possible people to be intelligent.

Capitalists used to believe that masses should be left in ignorance. Ignorance kept men apart in little isolated groups. Only the educated can communicate with each other, make comparisons and organize their strength.

Russia has just taught the world that uninformed countries are the first to destroy capitalism.

Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Whitney and Mr. Harkness issued insurance policies on their children's estates when they wrote those checks—insurance against political madness and mob rule.

History Has Met Their Sort Before

Men who know nothing about the past can always be expected to repeat its greatest errors. If Messrs. Rockefeller, Whitney and Harkness can drive that point home to some of their own friends and get them to read certain books that will be bought through their gift, a still greater benefit will have been conferred upon the country.

Big business can learn from history that many of its present practices will provoke popular reprisal. Other centuries have tried and condemned the same methods.

History is the balance sheet of experience. It tells how the past managed its business and what happened when affairs were mismanaged. Corporation directors should occasionally meet in the library and confer with other periods.

How the Coal Strikes Started

The French Revolution might have been prevented by lightening the salt tax. If George the Fourth hadn't profiteered in tea who knows but what America would still be a British dominion.

Coal operators began to incite mine strikes in monopolistic company stores. Oppressive methods, miserable wages and excessive rents forced the men to unite and fight back.

Any English baron of the twelfth century, remembering what occurred when he took too much off peasants' plates, could have predicted what's happening now.

When England Played Second Fiddle

Farmers are seeking easier money, a synonym for inflated currency. We had it right after the revolution. Then a market basketful of shinplasters couldn't fill it with groceries.

Despotism Makes Its Own Rebels

There are numerous references to support the spread[illegible] conviction that Mr. Anderson's obstructive silence has seriously hurt the Anti-Saloon League.

Records attest that every moralist who did not immediately face and rout suspicion weakened his cause and lost his prestige.

Advocates of Blue Sundays and exponents of various other inhibited measures are refighting old battles. Puritanism recurs in every generation. Human nature, too, bucks at tight cinches. Extremists won't learn that. Half per cent. beer has filled anti-prohibition ranks. Moral tyranny, as all other depotism, makes its own rebels.

Scratch a Frenchman, Find a Royalist

Rome died of indigestion. She gorged her cities with foreigners (as the United States has failed to nationalize its aliens) and in the hour of peril could not find enough loyal citizens to defend the empire against invaders.

Fifty per cent. of America's foreign-born have never taken the oath of allegiance.

Students are now substituting the Phrygian cap for the cocked hat of Napoleon. In a little more than a hundred years the Seine has flowed through three different republics. Except for seventy-four years, France has always been royalist.

It takes more than three-quarters of a century to wipe the militarist spirit out of a people. As the Ruhr bears witness.

Senator Reed's for Poincare Methods

Senator Reed doesn't like the British debt settlement. He figures that we'll be hornswaggled out of at least a billion dollars. He's against immediate confirmation of the deal and he's for the prompt collection of all other outstanding loans.

Time Walks a Path of Ink

It will enable additional thousands to make comparisons between the wealths and ways of various governments. It will introduce multitudes to the greatest thinkers and doers of every age and race, rebuild civilizations before the eyes of imagination and tell today the hopes and dreams and disappointments and triumphs of all genius.

More of us will hear Kings confess their errors and conquerors explain their purposes. While science narrates bitter struggles and makes a common estate of all discovery.
